30 DEATHS REPORTED

Piercing Cold Follows In Wake Of Wild Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The latest in February's storm series reeled into Canada above New Hampshire Friday night after blanketing a stretch from the southern Rockies to northern New England with snows up to a foot deep.

Sharp cold followed in the storm's wake and spread over much of the South and Southeast.

At least 30 deaths were blamed on the disturbance which hit portions of the northern Ohio Valley with their heaviest snow accumulations of the winter.

Drifted snows snarled traffic and caused closing of hundreds of rural schools in central Illinois, northern Indiana, southern Michigan and northwestern Ohio. Western New York and upland New England caught substantial new snowfall.

PLOWS

Plows fought to get traffic moving on U.S. Highway 41-52, the main Chicago-Florida highway after long lines of autos bogged down in 7-foot drifts. A number of community high schools gymnasiums housed stalled motorists.

The storm ran into warm southerly air currents which turned it short of the New England coast and converted snowfall into rain and some sleet in Connecticut, Rhode Island and eastern Massachusetts.

Knightstown in East-central Indiana received 12 inches of snow. Logansport, Ind., had 11 inches. Southern Michigan reported accumulations up to 8 inches, and northwestern Ohio 7 inches.

In Western New York up to 11 inches fell in Niagara County, and 10.7 inches were measured in Buffalo.

Winds diminished as the storm arched through the Northeast, and clearing skies were not far behind it.

Foreign Aid In Viet Nam Is Blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Senate subcommittee said Friday the foreign aid program in Viet Nam wasted millions of U.S. tax dollars with such projects as a slipshod highway program and "ostentatious" housing for American workers.

It called for an immediate investigation by aid officials of the highway program and a radio project which featured "rigged bids, suggestions of misuse of public funds and charges of favoritism." It asked the State Department for a report by September.

PROBE

The Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee, headed by Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) began its investigation last year after Scripps - Howard writer Albert Colegrove reported waste and mismanagement in the small far eastern country.

The subcommittee's report said specific charges raised by Colegrove "do not generally lend themselves to proof or disproof by a legislative body." But it said "adjustments are needed and they are needed promptly."

The subcommittee blamed part of the loss or waste of millions of dollars in aid money on the rate of exchange of 35 piasters—the monetary unit of Viet Nam—for one dollar of U.S. aid funds.

The tourist rate allowed by Viet Nam to U.S. officials for exchange of personal funds is more than double that, or 70.2 piasters to the dollar. The subcommittee said it could see no justification for the difference since tax dollars used in the aid program are just as "precious" as the personal money of aid officials.

Waco Suffers Second Fire

WACO (AP)—This central Texas city suffered its second major fire in two days yesterday when a blaze struck the Dustless Air Filter Service.

Between 50,000 and 60,000 filters with an estimated value of $200,000, were destroyed. The fire started from an explosion of oil being heated in a pan.

Fire caused an estimated million dollars damage to a half block of stores and offices in downtown Waco Thursday. There were no injuries.

The fire apparently started in the kitchen of the Elite Cafe and quickly spread to two clothing stores, an optical firm and a number of upstairs offices.

The cause of the fire was not determined.

Farm Funds Hike Request Is Refused

Action Taken By House OK's Allowance Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Appropriations Committee denied President Eisenhower's request for an extra $676 million dollars for farm price supports Friday and chopped 10 per cent from money to pay for secret service protection on his world travels.

But it approved without change a request by House Clerk Ralph H. Roberts for $523,200 to boost the stationery allowance of each House member from $1,200 to $1,800 a year.

The committee took the actions in approving a catch-all money bill carrying $229,175,864 in supplemental appropriations for the current fiscal year ending June 30. The President had requested $333,398,264, plus the price support funds.

FAILED

The committee said the Agriculture Department had failed to show that the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC), which administers the support program, really needed the extra money.

The CCC sought the additional funds to cover past losses on crops surpluses and to replenish its capital. But the committee said the agency had 441 million dollars in unused borrowing authority which could be used for these purposes.

The committee urged the CCC to sell its farm surpluses at better prices. It said this would bring in additional capital and help cut warehousing and related costs expected to reach $1,262,000,000 this year.

It said its denial of the funds would "in no way hurt the farmer" since "no one can claim that these tremendous warehouse expenditures help either the farmer or consumer."

Protestants Demanding Repudiation

Want Apology For Linking Of Churches, Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six Protestant leaders demanded public government repudiation and apologies Friday for charges linking the National Council of Churches with Communism.

The churchmen, in New York, sent telegrams to Rep. Francis E. Walter, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, and Dudley C. Sharp, secretary of the Air Force.

They demanded that Walter apologize to the council and the 60 million Protestants it represents for his "untrue statement" supporting charges of Communist influence made in an Air Force manual. In addition they asked that Sharp repudiate the charges made in the manual and forbid reissuance in any form of "the false and slanderous charges" contained in it.

SIGNERS

The churchmen who signed the telegram were the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk, and the Rev. Arthur Miller, moderator, of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; the Rev. Dr. Fred Hoskins and the Rev. Dr. James E. Wagner, co-presidents of the United Church of Christ; the Rt. Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and the Rt. More Deaths Likely In Ireland Crash

SHANNON AIRPORT, Ireland (AP)—Many survivors of an Italian airliner crash that carried at least 29 people to a blazing death amid the shattered tombstones of a country graveyard remained in critical condition Friday. Investigators sifted the still-smoking wreckage in an effort to determine the cause of the tragedy.

Most of the dead on the flight originating in Naples and heading for New York were Americans and Italians. Al Italia Airline officials said approximately a dozen persons with U.S. addresses were aboard, and that five of these survived. They withheld details pending a completed check.

Twenty-seven of the 52 aboard the four-engine DC7C were known to have perished. Another two were missing and presumed burned to ashes in the inferno of blazing gasoline. The plane had just taken on 7,000 gallons for the transatlantic hop.

CLIMAX

The crash climaxed the blackest day for peacetime aviation. It was the first time that three major planes had gone down within 24 hours. Two planes collided near Rio de Janeiro Thursday, killing 61 aboard. Then came the Shannon crash, which raised the toll in seven major commercial aviation crashes this year to at least 269.

One of those listed as missing here was Mrs. Giulia Roosevelt Pallavicini Creel, a distant cousin of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and wife of a young Marine pilot. His father is Judge James R. Creel of the New York City Court of Special Sessions.

Only a handful of the survivors escaped critical injury. Doctors said most had deep burns and

Mattresses Arrive For Tired Solons

Round-The-Clock Rights Battle To Start Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arrangements were made Friday to bed down senators for round-the-clock sessions due to start Monday in the battle over civil rights legislation.

Forty cots and mattresses were lugged into the Capitol building. Sergeant-at-Arms Joseph C. Duke, the Senate's housekeeper, borrowed them from the Army.

Most of them are to be set up in Appropriations Committee hearing rooms on the floor below the Senate chamber. A few are to be placed in cloakrooms just outside the Senate.

Like firemen, senators are going to have to be ready to spring out of bed on a moment's notice.

TACTICS

One of the many parliamentary tactics available to filibustering Southern foes of the civil rights legislation is to make a point that a quorum, or a majority of the 100 senators, is not present.

Once this is done, the Senate comes to a standstill until a quorum shows up. It gives the Dixie speakers a chance to rest and can be particularly effective in the middle of the night unless other senators can put in an appearance quickly.

Duke said he had borrowed only 40 cots since many senators have offices with couches in them near the Senate chamber. Other senators plan to snooze on couches in the cloakrooms and still others in their suites in the nearby office buildings.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) said he plans to bed down in the Senate gymnasium. One advantage of this plan: He also can get a massage.

Arranging places for senators to sleep is only one of the problems

Girl Hurt Here Taken By Plane To Sanitarium

An eight-year old West Monroe third grader, Alice Kay Traylor, was injured yesterday at morning recess when slammed on the head by a metal door in a school basement, and hospital physicians, fearing a possible brain hemorrhage, had her flown by plane to Highland Sanitarium in Shreveport for further examination.

From all indications, Shreveport physicians said late yesterday, there were no critical injuries, and the youth was not in danger. Examination, however, will continue through the next few days, an attending physician stated.

SITTING UP

The student, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Traylor, 122 Riverbend Drive, was reported by nurses to be "sitting up in bed and in good spirits."

The accident happened about 10 a.m. during recess at Mitchell Elementary school. A heavy metal door to the girls' basement was slammed against the youth's

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER, hood of his car covered with flowers thrown by welcoming crowds, waves as motorcade moves along street in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Nearly a million persons turned out to greet Ike, the largest reception he has received so far on his Latin America visit. (AP Wirephoto by radio from Buenos Aires)

But Welcome For Ike Is Not Curbed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Eisenhower heard the cheers of perhaps a million Argentines Friday but ran into Peronista demonstrations that brought police tear gas into play at one point. The President could get a whiff of the gas as he left the Argentine Congress after an address.

The demonstrations by followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron failed, however, to overshadow the enthusiastic welcome, the biggest and warmest yet on Eisenhower's South American trip.

U. E. Baughman, chief of the U.S. Secret Service, estimated the crowd at 750,000 to a million — several hundred thousand more than had greeted Eisenhower in Brazil's two biggest cities.

BOMBS

To start the day, five bombs exploded in Buenos Aires, injuring three people. Supporters of Peron usually are blamed for frequent bomb blasts linked with Argentina's constant political turmoil.

A few Peron demonstrators marred Eisenhower's parade through the city, but the worst came after the parade had ended, as he was leaving the Congress building.

Shortly before Eisenhower's car was due to pass an intersection near the Congress building one group of demonstrators raised a banner proclaiming: "Ike Peronista." Another group of people quickly shouted "Ike is a democrat. . . . Ike is no dictator."

The shouts led to blows and police moved in brandishing clubs and firing tear gas. They brought the disturbance under control before Eisenhower's car reached the scene but his car moved through the still drifting gas.

About 150 persons were involved. Police arrested 12.

When Eisenhower went into the Congress building a group of about 500 Peronistas shouted slogans and battled police. Some broke through police lines but were speedily rounded up.

Trucks rushed reinforcements to the area and police formed a solid

Coffee Break An Eternity For Suspect

HAMBURG, Ark. (Special) — James D. Wallace went to coffee Friday. He never came back.

They found him in his father-in-law's back yard —dead — a gaping .12-gauge shotgun blast in the chest.

Wallace, 38, was taken into custody at his home on route 5 here by Ashley County deputies from the office of Sheriff B. A. Courson who were going to turn him over to the Morehouse, La. Sheriff's Department on a forgery charge.

While the routine paperwork was being completed at the courthouse at Hamburg, Wallace asked to go across the street for a cup of coffee. His request was granted. But instead of going for coffee, Wallace went to his death.

RULING

Wallace had been allowed to drive his own car to the courthouse and had available transportation back home.

Ashley County coroner Billy Jones ruled Wallace took his own life. The victim's body was found by his father-in-law, Henry Reid.

The two were next-door neighbors.

Authorities said Wallace left a note asking that his child be raised a Christian and that no one be blamed for his death but himself.

Time of the shooting was set at 10:45 a.m. Friday.

Wallace was unemployed, according to Ashley County Serifff B. A. Courson. He had at one time operated a restaurant near Hamburg.

Authorities here said Wallace was wanted by the Sheriff's Department at Bastrop on a forged check charge.

Funeral services are scheduled 11 a.m. Sunday at Pine Forest Baptist Church of North Crossett with the Rev. Roy Chapman and the Rev. J. W. Johnson officiating.

Burial will be by Jones Funeral Home of Hamburg.

Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Gerlie Frances Reid Wallace; a son, Jimmie D. Wallace, Hamburg; his mother, Mrs. Dora Wallace, Monroe; three brothers, Leroy Wallace and Doug Wal-

Plans May Pare Underpass Cost

New plans for the Plum Street underpass — improving the proposed construction and cutting its estimated cost by $80,400 — came to light yesterday at a City Hall meeting.

Acting Mayor and Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez presented revised preliminary drawings of the underpass to Missouri Pacific representatives.

He asked the railroad to divide the cost equally with the city and donate land, and discussed city purchase of Louisville Cooperage land for street approaches to the underpass.

Under the new plan, the street leading to the underpass will be 30 feet south of Plum Street, and have sloping, grassy inclines on either side.

FIRST DESIGN

The first design routed the street straight down into the underpass, with vertical cement walls next to the street.

R. W. Hixon, with the engineering department of the Mo-Pac, W. I. Neel and L. G. High, associated consulting engineers on the underpass project, John Harper, Louisville Cooperage Co. manager, H. A. Kleier, Louisville, Ky. engineer, and Tom Keller,

Van Rie Gives Final Denial In Slay Case

BOSTON (AP) — Dutch radio operator Willem Van Rie made a final, unwavering denial Friday that he beat Lynn Kaufman and threw her off his ship to drown. Thus he ended nearly three full days on the witness stand at his first-degree murder trial.

Earlier, he had denied shoving the girl unconscious through her cabin porthole so he could toss her overboard unobserved last Sept. 13.

The handsome, 31-year-old Van Rie told again of a false admission he said he gave police under gruelling duress just before his arrest in the girl's death.

ASKED

As Asst. Dist. Atty. John F. McAuliffe then asked: "And didn't you say, 'Now I have stuck my neck completely into a hole?' "

"Yes, sir," Van Rie replied.

"And that's because you beat this girl unconscious and dumped her over the rail," McAuliffe shouted.

"No more questions," McAuliffe told Superior Court Judge Frank U. Murray, and Van Rie stepped down from the witness stand at 3:41 p.m. He began his testimony in midmorning, Wednesday.

Airplane Society Honoring Woman

NEW YORK (AP)—On a windy day in 1910, a girl in long, flapping skirts and Gibson-girl pompadour was taxiing a three-wheeled contraption of pipes, cables and oiled silk around a pasture at Hammondsport, N.Y.

A gust of wind came along, and Blanche Stuart Scott, 18, became the first woman in America to take to the air.

The Antique Airplane Assn. is honoring Sunday the indestructible little lady who is celebrating the half-century anniversary of that gust of wind.

After flying in, by airliner, from her home in Rochester, N.Y., lively Miss Scott reminisced in an interview about the early days of flying.

She wondered why, in the 50 years since she got the brass bands and four-figure weekly salary of movie glamour queens because she could fly a plane, aviation is still almost entirely a man's world.

"There's no reason for it at all," she said. "In the old days I never heard anybody talk about women pilots, the way they say women drivers. Either you were a good pilot or a clunk, and nobody ever called you a woman pilot."

When Miss Scott invaded the little male world of aviation in 1910 she was an old hand at startling people.

She drove her first automobile at the age of 13 and was the first woman to drive an auto across

ATOM-SMASHER

Industrious Pupils Tackle Big Project

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Nearly two years ago a handful of zealous pupils at Central High School resolved to build an atom-smasher.

The physics teacher, Fred Hofkin, had received a grant of $800 from the Heart Assn. of Southeastern Pennsylvania for research. So what better course than to set about making a cyclotron, capable of producing radioactive isotopes for research and treatment of heart and other disease?

Central, being a strictly academic school, has no shop. So the boys decided to build their cyclotron in the basement furnace room.

The boys begged and borrowed materials from coast to coast. A California electronics firm gave $160 worth of vacuum pipe and fittings. The University of Pennsylvania lent a one-ton coil of copper wire, blown glass and other special parts.

Last fall Hofkin, an inspiration to the pupils, took a teaching job elsewhere. But he gave all his spare time to the dedicated group of boys at Central.

The young scientists aimed to finish the atom-smasher by next Sunday, which is Heart Sunday. To that end they worked nights and weekends. On Washington's Birthday, a school holiday, the boys kept at it for over 12 hours. Dismaying setbacks came on the last stretch. The vacuum pump broke. A large transformer bought city engineer attended the session.

Plans May Pare Underpass Cost

Neel and High's revised design provides for sloping sides leading up from the street approaches.

Construction according to the new plan will cost an estimated $318,800 as compared with the $399,200 estimate on the earlier design.

If approved by Missouri Pacific officials, it will require additional right-of-way on the south side of Plum Street, between Jackson Street, the railroad tracks, and 240 feet east of the tracks.

Louisville Cooperage, which owns the land involved on the west side of the tracks has agreed to sell it to the city when needed.

"The cooperation shown by officials of the Missouri - Pacific and the Louisville Cooperage Company has been most satisfactory. They both are good people to do business with," commented Rodriguez.

TO CONSIDER

Preliminary drawings and cost estimate copies will be considered by Mo-Pac officials here, in Little Rock, Ark. and in St. Louis before any decision is made.

"I don't have any idea how long it will take," Rodriguez said.

The first design called for a divided street going straight from Jackson Street down into a two-tube tunnel and back up on the east side of the tracks. Concrete retaining walls would have closed in the street on either side.

"It's almost certain that vertical cement walls would have had some seepage, and have been continually damp," explained the Commissioner.

Now under consideration is a plan for sloping, grass-planted land leading away gradually from the street approaches.

This design will require a "two-to-one" slope on either side of the street.

OUTLOOK

If approved, it will route the street approach on a very slight curve from Jackson Street.

Distance of the approach street to the underpass will be 300 feet.

Twenty feet on the north side of the present Plum street will remain a surface street from Jackson to Railroad avenue.

Since the approach down to the underpass will be an entirely new street, and calls for a gradual incline on either side of the street, it needs the land from Louisville Cooperage and the Mo-Pac.

If the project is approved, the Missouri-Pacific will abandon its present yard office and build a new one. The City has asked for railroad-owned land bordering 240 feet on Plum Street, and 70 feet across at its widest point.

Louisville Cooperage land slated for the project will include 300 feet along Plum Street, and 160 feet next to the railroad tracks.

The first underpass in Monroe will be "limited" — it won't take great importance to a very large transport trucks.

Each tube will have an 11 foot, 9 inch clearance, and will be 10 feet wide.

Sidewalks three feet 11 inches wide will be separated from traffic lanes by a steel safety fence.

The underpass will be equipped with an automatic electric pump to dispose of rain water. A standby gas-powered pump will take over if an electrical storm puts the electric pump out of order.

Each tunnel will be 50 feet long.

Including the street approaches, overall length of the underpasses will be 650 feet.

City buses, school buses, light delivery trucks and automobiles may use the underpass.

When the city and the railroad come to satisfactory agreement, the city will advertise for bids.

The underpass is needed to handle the large volume of traffic between the southside west of the tracks and Lee Junior High School east of the railroad. Students also use the crossing to go to Ouachita Parish High School near Selman Field.

"This grade separation is of great importance to a very large number of citizens," said Rodriguez.

The Commission Council, composed of Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, Finance and Utility Commissioner H. W. McSherry and Street Commissioner Rodriguez took the matter under consideration in 1957, and decided the underpass is a "must" due to the heavy traffic crossing the tracks, and the school locations.

Despite the violence, the welcome given Eisenhower in this Argentine capital far surpassed what many Americans here had expected in the light of Argentina's neutralism in World War II and the relative reserve of the people as compared with the Brazilians.

After a decorous start, the crowd put their hearts into a ripsaring greeting that was easily the biggest and warmest of Eisenhower's four-nation South American tour.

"Welcome Ike," they shouted, waving handkerchiefs and U.S. and Argentine flags. "Hurrah for democracy! Hurrah for Ike!"

From his open bubble-top car, Eisenhower grinned and waved back with his arms extended overhead. The outbursts of popular exuberance developed during Eisenhower's six-mile drive from the U.S. Embassy residence on the broad, tree-lined Avenue Libertador San Martin to Casa Rosada, the pink government house, for a formal call on President Arturo Frondizi.

White clouds dotted the sky. The temperature was 86.

Eisenhower was escorted by mounted grenadiers of Frondizi's honor guard, flashy in red and blue uniforms. He wore a blue suit with a red carnation in his lapel.

Police were stationed every 10 to 20 feet along the route of Eisenhower's colorful motorcade to keep the people back. In some cases they stood shoulder to shoulder in areas where there were no people. For the first four miles groups only one deep were the rule. But the streets became jammed with humanity at the end of the route.

There were no signs of hostility toward Eisenhower in the crowds from this city of more than four million, but a few followers of the exiled Peron raised cries for the former President at three intervals. Groups ranging from 20 to 30 persons shouted: "Peron, Peron, Peron!"

Unlike Brazil's, Argentine's government has not declared a holiday. However, it released government workers in time for the parade. Its decoration of the parade route involved far fewer flags and posters than Eisenhower saw during his tour through Brasilia, Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

Ex-Shreveport Man Indicted On 20 Counts

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A. M. Poynter, ormer Shreveport man, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on 20 counts in an alleged scheme to defraud investors in oil and gas wells in Caddo Parish.

Poynter, who moved to Baton Rouge a few months ago, was charged in the indictment released Friday with 13 counts of violating laws covering the sale of securities and with seven counts of mail fraud.

The indictment said Poynter sold unregistered stocks in a gas company he formed and also interest in oil and gas wells which he misrepresented.

The securities, the government charged, were sold to persons far removed from Caddo Parish. Listed in the indictment were names of California residents who had purchased stock or dividend interests in wells. How much money was involved in the transactions was not stipulated. However, Poynter had offered for sale 1,250 shares in the North Louisiana Gas Co. at $50 per share, a total of $62,500. The indictment said he had misrepresented that he would buy 25 per cent of the stock.

Thursday, Central High took the wraps off the cyclotron, which builds up an internal speed of up to 40,000 miles a second and has a magnetic force of 16,000 units known as gauss. In a preliminary test, the mechanism blasted its protons right on target.

At top speed these particles smash into a target in a vacuum chamber. This releases part of the energy of the damaged atoms in the form of rays. The isotopes are a by-product of the atom-smashing.

Details of the pupils' accomplishment were given to Edvard Roscheck, of the Atomic Energy Commission's research division in Washington. Roscheck told school authorities the boys may well have done something on a scale achieved by no other high school in the land. In recent years, a few cyclotrons have been built by American college students. But rarely if ever before have high school pupils tackled construction of a machine so intricate.

Special

"The Ouachita Lion," publication of the Ouachita Parish High School, is listing 12 students chosen from their special classes for appearance in the feature section of the 1960 "Roarer." They are as follows:

Pat Holloway, student council president and Ervin Bates, senior class vice - president. These were listed on the first ballot as most popular. Those in the run off election were Tavie Kenny, honor society member, selected as most beautiful. Other beauties selected were Dorothy Gilley, Miss Future Secretary, and Elsie Douglas, Honor Society member from Holly Ridge. Bob Saterfield, varsity football player, was named most handsome. Tommy Winkler, also member of the varsity squad, and Richard Cox, F.B.L.A. member, were selected as handsome boys.

Elected friendliest boy and girl were Larry Kulcke, Hi-Y president, and Maxine Brown, cheer leader.

Chosen to represent the Junior Class were DeLane Cooper, class secretary, and Milton Platt, class vice - president.

The sophomore class chose Carole Peters, cheerleader, and "Butch" Oglesbee, football player, to represent them in the year book.

Teachers

Almost overlooked by the many meetings on the campus recently was that of the regular monthly session of Visiting Teachers of the Fifth district. They met the past week in the faculty lounge of the Administration building and heard a discussion by Dr. T. Eugene Holtzclaw, dean of education, on the outlook for attendance of college this summer.

Twenty were in attendance from the various neighboring parishes. At noon a finely prepared and served luncheon was on the program, with President and Mrs. George T. Walker as gracious hosts.

the country "over wagon trails full of prairie-dog holes, and with many a broken spring."

The publicity from this cross-country drive was noted by Glenn L. Curtiss in upstate New York, whose principal source of income was from daredevil exhibitions across the country of his pusher airplanes. Curtiss suggested she join his crew of daredevils.

One day in September, 1910 Miss Scott was in the Hammondsport pasture going through what then passed for pilot training. In those days no budding flier ever took to the air except to solo. There was only room in the plane for one.

"When the instructor thought you ready to fly," Miss Scott recalled, "he stood beside the plane, told you to take off, and said: 'God bless you and keep you, for I can't.'"

This day Curtiss himself was instructing Miss Scott, and he had given her neither take-off signal nor blessing. She had been under instruction for only three days. A governor held down the power of the motor.

But the gust of wind lifted the winged birdcage about 10 feet off the ground. She was flying, but with no power to keep her in the air, she quickly bounced down for her first landing.

"This gave me an excuse," she said, "to insist that they take the governor off the motor, and I began flying. What we actually did was hop. The plane was small and the field was big, so we would hop first 50 feet, then 75 feet, then 100 feet."

She made her first appearance as a "professional" in an exhibition at Fort Wayne, Ind.

"I cracked up twice, and I have 41 mended bones," she said, reviewing her career. "Once at Madison, Wis., I took a dive from 200 feet in the air. My foot throttle wire had been cut in half. Apparently somebody did it intentionally—it was a clean cut. But I landed nose down in a swamp, and was thrown out into the water. I was laid up for several weeks.

"I've had a good angel all my life."

Protestants Demanding Repudiation

national the telegram bore out his forecast that a committee hearing on the manual Friday would be "falsely" labelled by the committee's critics as an attack on religion.

The training manual, designed to alert Air Force reservists against espionage and sabotage, was withdrawn after the church group protested a section linking some persons connected with the council to "pro-Communist fronts, projects and publications."

The manual now is being revised to eliminate any reference specific organizations or individuals. However, the Air Force still is using another security manual containing similar charges. The training manual was based on the security pamphlet.

The Council of Churches was based on the security pamphlet.

The Council of Churches was particularly aroused by the Air Force secretary's testimony before Walter's committee Thursday that he was uncertain whether the charges in the manual were true or false.

The protest to Walter noted that the council's national board at a meeting in Oklahoma City condemned the Air Force for issuing a manual containing "untrue and ridiculous charges against educational institutions, churches of America and the National Council of Churches."

It also noted the congressman's stand that the charges were true and Sharp's refusal to say whether they were true or false.

The protest then called on the Air Force secretary "to repudiate and forbid reissuance in any form of the false and slanderous charges contained in the manual."

It also demanded that Walter "retract his untrue statement of charges against the churches and . . . apologize to the National Council of Churches and to the 60 million members of Protestant churches in America."

Walter promptly sent a telegram to the council's New York headquarters asking if the group wanted to testify "in order to question the accuracy of the material which comes from the (committee) files and which appears in the Air Force manual."

"If you desire such an opportunity," he added, "we can arrange a time convenient to yourselves."

He told a reporter:

"They are demanding a retraction and I am offering them an opportunity to testify.

"This is exactly the thing that I predicted some time ago. There has never been any attempt or desire to make an attack on what they mention. I said the inquiry would be falsely labelled by its critics as an attack on religion and that's exactly what they are doing."

B. E. Roberts Dies, Final Services Set

ALTO (Special) — Bryan Eugene Roberts, 63, Alto church leader and businessman, died in a Sterlington hospital Friday.

He was a deacon of the Alto First Baptist Church and was operator of a mercantile store.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Alto First Baptist Church. The Revs. James Strietman, Roy Wallace and Ron Wilkens will officiate. Interment will follow in the church cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn's Funeral Home of Rayville.

Thompson, Candor, N.C.; five brothers, Clarence Roberts, Mount Gilead, N.C.; Eddie Roberts and J. M. Roberts, both of Alto; J. D. Roberts and T. S. Roberts, both of Archibald; 18 grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be J. A. Ball, J. E. Hoben, Marvin Smith, J. A. McCoy, R. B. McKay, E. E. Thomason, Claude Brown and Earl J. Mulhearn.

More Deaths Likely In Ireland Crash

fractures. Several hovered on the verge of death.

"It's a miracle that anyone came out of it alive," said one veteran at this busy international airport.

A local priest, the Rev. Thomas Comerford, said it was "like a scene from hell."

The plane, carrying 40 passengers and a crew of 12, had made an unscheduled refueling stop at Shannon soon after midnight. An hour later it roared off the main runway and seemed to be climbing strongly over a small hill.

Then came a roaring, grinding crash that woke the whole countryside.

A sheet of flame lit up the night sky as the plane sheared through the little cemetery about three miles from the airport tower. Twisting and turning, the big plane ripped through the soggy grass, tearing itself to pieces and spilling passengers to the ground. Screaming and moaning rose from the field.

Two Persons Injured In Wreck Here

Two local persons were injured and two cars extensively damaged in an auto collision here at Park Avenue and North 10th street yesterday about 2:45 p.m.

Sandra Stencil, 18, 720 Guy Avenue, and Ronnie Haile, 18, 400 South Second, West Monroe were rushed by Mulhearn ambulance to St. Francis hospital, where they were treated for lacerations and bruises and later released.

Both injured persons were riding in the car driven by Haile. The second car involved was parked and no one was in it. It's owner, Donald Joseph Brulte, 29, stated he did not see the crash.

According to Monroe police who investigated the accident, Haile's auto was headed east on Park Avenue when it crashed into the rear of the parked auto. Police reports state that Haile said he looked off for a second and when he looked back at the road, he was crashing into the back of the parked auto.

Both automobiles were extensively damaged in the crash. Police issued a ticket to Haile charging reckless driving.

Boy Friend Dresses Up For A Casual Movie Date

HARRY JUSTER

DEAR MR. JUSTER: Don't you think showing up for casual dates, such as a neighborhood movie, in a dressy dark suit, French cuff shirts with all the trimmings is overdoing it a bit? I am refering to my boy friend. I dress very casually and personally feel a pair of slacks and a sport coat are more suitable. Am I right?

Sari S.

This can mean, (1) he thinks so much of you he wants to look his best; (2) he simply enjoys dressing up. Clothes should be picked for the occasion and also with consideration to your ensemble. A casual sport jacket and slacks would be my choice for a neighborhood movie with a stop at the corner soda fountain or a hamburger drive-in afterwards.

DEAR MR. JUSTER: My husband is 6 feet 5 inches. He is nicely proportioned with that long, lean look. I have recently convinced him that every well-dressed man should wear a hat. Now the problem is this. What hat style should he choose considering his height and slimness?

Mrs. C. J. H.

Sounds as though he'd be a good stand-in for Gary Cooper. He will look best in a low crown hat with medium width brim. The low crown helps offset his vertical build and also will make his face look less lean and narrow. Have him tilt the hat at a slight angle. This will further break up those slim, up-and-down lines. Adds a debonair look, too.

DEAR MR. JUSTER: I wear a lot of sweaters and one thing bothers me. The cuffs always come loose even though I shove them up. It gets me very nervous to keep pushing them up and also makes the sweater look sloppy. Is there any way to keep the sleeves tight? R. S.

Are you married? Ask your wife to get some elastic thread and carefully sew it around the bottom of the sleeve, using a small basting stitch. Be sure the color of the thread closely matches the sweater so that it blends. No wife? A tailor or seamstress will be happy to do this for you. This should help keep them tight.

DEAR MR. JUSTER: I carry a good many keys. Could you discuss how to avoid puffed out pockets? Is it better to put all keys together and carry them in one pocket or scatter them in several pockets? Do you recommend a key chain, a leather case, or what? C. M. W.

As a member of the "key for everything" group I'm familiar with this problem. All the keys on a ring not ony bulge, they may create a hole. Scattered loosely in various pockets avoids bulges, but searching for the right key is tough on the nerves. Carrying one group on a ring and the rest in a trim leather case in a separate pocket works best for me.

TIP FOR THE DAY

The English May Have An Idea

A friend of mine who just returned from India was impressed by the fact that many Englishmen living in isolated areas of that country insist on dressing formally for dinner even when dining alone. I'm not advocating that we do the same. It's interesting, though, to note that we often depend on clothes to give us a lift.

Mr. Juster will be glad to answer your questions. He also has a booklet, "Guide to Better Dress" which includes a color chart, physical proportions chart, and many tips for improving appearance. The booklet is available free. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope to Harry Juster in care of The World.

Nation Felt Meg Might Never Marry

LONDON (AP) — "Archbishop, you may put your books away. I have made up my mind."

Thus Princess Margaret sealed her decision to forsake a romance that had rocked the throne of England.

On that gray day in October 1955 the nation wondered in tortured curiosity whether Margaret would marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend—war hero, ace flyer and palace courtier.

After days of anguished meditation, weighing her love against royal and religious opposition to the match, she called on the archbishop of Canterbury.

As she walked into the primate's office in Lambeth Palace, Margaret saw him poring over reference books, assembling his arguments against a marriage with Townsend.

It was then she told him to put the books away.

Soon afterward the Princess issued her historic public renunciation of the romance:

"Mindful of the church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble, and conscious of my duty to the Commonwealth, I have resolved to put these considerations before any others.

"I have reached this decision entirely alone."

Townsend, a friend of Margaret's as a royal equerry since she was 13, was in every way an eligible suitor except for one hard fact.

He had been married before, and that marriage had ended in divorce.

Wedding a divorced man would have forced Margaret to renounce her succession to the throne—in the same way that King Edward VIII had to abdicate when he married the American divorcee Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Friends believed the Princess would gladly have gone ahead with the match if it was simply a question of forsaking royal privilege.

But she balked at the upheaval that would have followed a second abdication for marriage within 20 years. It would have gravely affected the monarchy.

As it was, a fierce storm of controversy raged over Margaret's head long after the romance was over. Newspapers passionately denounced the protocol that had wrecked her love.

Townsend slipped quietely off on a world tour, pottered around the continent for some years, and last December married his secretary, Marie Jamagne, daughter of a wealthy tobacco dealer, in Brussels.

Margaret, suddenly shedding the gaity of her youth, busied herself in royal duties with prim detachment.

As the years rolled by and Margaret approached 30 without finding an enduring suitor, Britons began to assume she was headed for spinsterhood.

Senate Says Hoffa Is 'Obligated'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate rackets committee said Friday it has shown up as completely dishonest President James R. Hoffa's repeated pledges to stamp corruption out of his Teamsters Union.

It portrayed him as a man under deep obligations to the underworld.

After making his promises, the committee told the Senate in a report, Hoffa set up in Miami what it termed a "racket local," No. 320. It said he installed Harold Gross, whom it called a convicted extortionist and known fixer, as the local's president. Hoffa has been pumping $3,000 a month subsidies from his union's funds into the local, the report said.

The committee charged that a purported anticorruption commission set up by Hoffa at the union's expense was a cover-up operation. Former Sen. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) resigned recently as the commission's head.

Bender's commission, the report alleged, "was formed merely for purposes of deception—to conceal from the committee, the courts and the public generally Hoffa's dependence on and obligations to these—racketeer—elements."

In sum, it said, Hoffa is contemptuous of law and order.

The report is the first of four which the committee is issuing on its 1958 and 1959 investigations in various labor-management fields.

In one section, the report said the committee is unanimous in viewing payoffs exacted by racketeers from some big metropolitan newspapers and publishing firms as a "potential threat to freedom of the press."

The findings reviewed testimony that payoffs had been extorted as a price for labor peace, to avert costly stoppages of the wholesale delivery of newspapers, newspaper supplements and magazines.

The report said payments aggregating $307,136.60 had been made to Gross and Cornelius (Connie) Noonan, his labor union ally, by the New York Times, the New York Mirror, the Neo-Gravure Printing Co. of Weehawken, N.J., and the American Weekly, owned by the Hearst Publishing Co., Inc. It said that American Weekly paid to protect its deliveries of supplements to the New York Journal American. There was no comment on the report by the newspapers.

Noonan is head of the Inland Terminal Workers Local No. 1730 of the International Longshoremen's Assn.

The report also charged that racketeers had extorted large sums from New York area wholesale distributors of newspapers and magazines, and had infiltrated some of the firms and unions with which the delivery firms bargain.

The report charged that some officials of the Sheet Metal Workers Union had extorted money from Chicago area employers, and had been involved also in rigging bids for contracts with the city of Chicago. It predicted the Justice Department will bring some perjury charges based on conflicts in the testimony about this.

In another section, the committee said there is need for an investigation of spending by labor unions and employers in election campaigns.

Plebiscite For Germany

In two conspicious spots on the world map, nations cut in two for military occupation after World War II have survived in jigsaw form and have been sources of unrest.

Korea's division between Communist and U. S. occupation led finally to the Korean War. The trouble is likely to flare up again in that country, since there is still division.

East and West Germany also face one another as adversaries as an outgrowth of opposing occupying powers. The Berlin blockade and resulting airlift of 1948, though short of war, were incidents within a divided nation.

Geography and other matters of strategy have entered into the reasons why Germany and Korea are still partitioned. Finland, at war with Russia in 1938, had a large debt to pay to the Soviet Union in 1945. Yet when this was carried out, the Russians kept no occupation troops in Finland.

Russia and the western allies jointly occupied Austria at the end of World War II. But accord was reached among the powers and all, including Russia, marched their troops out of that central European country.

For a while, it appeared the Russians would keep troops in Iran in the middle east when World War II ended. But the west took a firm stand in opposition to this and Russia withdrew her forces.

All meetings on the subject of German unification have led to hassles over procedure. Talks between the United States and Russia have stalled over the matter of which should come first: treaty or unification.

At this time, the United States wants to leave it to a German vote. Under the plan, the Germans in the east and west portions of the country would be polled on what they would prefer: 1. A united Germany with a single peace settlement, or: 2. A divided Germany with separate peace treaties.

For years, Soviet Premier Khrushchev has worked for separate peace treaties which would freeze the division of Germany and "wall off" the traditional capital, Berlin.

On the other hand, U. S. Secretary of State Christian Herter is outspoken in favor of the unification of the former German nation and a subsequent treaty of peace.

If free elections - - without any interference from other nations - - can be assured, it is hoped the German people will be given the opportunity to vote on an issue which so vitally effects their future.

Choosing One's Patrons

Some restaurants, cafes and other places where food is served post signs saying: "We reserve the right to refuse service to anyone."

Signs of this kind were placed in some establishments long before racial questions became an issue in the south. The signs were not posted to keep out Negroes but to keep out anyone who might be objectionable. The owner of the place was asserting his right to choose his clients or patrons. This right was not disputed.

Restaurants do not move from place to place. They are not common carriers. Even the common carriers, which are more subject to interstate and intrastate regulations than most other businesses, are granted or assume the right to reject a passenger who is objectionable. Some train or bus or airline conductors will not allow a drunk or violent person or one who is known to be carrying arms to board their vehicles.

If a place which serves food chooses to serve only a certain class of patrons it has that right. One restaurant might choose to serve only men another might choose to serve only women. Certainly no ordinary citizen would think of denying them that right and neither would any court have done so before the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People began denying the right of businesses to select their own patrons.

Even now, with ideas of ordinary justice and individual rights thrown askew by biased rulings of the United States Supreme Court, no one will say that a lawyer must accept money from a client he does not wish to represent. The lawyer rightly chooses his own clients. This is true in many other professions and businesses.

Heretofore, when anyone raised a ruckus or refused to leave when he could not get service he was declared to be disturbing the peace or to be guilty of unlawful loitering.

Some cafes in which segregation has been maintained have served both whites and Negroes but in the south the custom has been either to serve the Negroes in a separate room or to sell them the food in a package so that they could eat it elsewhere.

Variety stores which have served food to Negroes while they were standing beside the stools on which white persons sat are the ones which now are suffering most from Negro picketing. Obviously, serving both whites and Negroes together, with the white persons seated and the Negroes standing, was a mistake and it is this mistake which largely has brought on the picketing. If segregation is to be maintained, the whites and Negroes should be served in separate places.

Notwithstanding this, a person who refuses to leave the premises of a private business establishment when asked to do so is trespassing and may also be guilty of disturbing the peace and unlawful loitering, since he is interfering with the business operation of the place. Such a person is therefore subject to arrest and prosecution. Even union members must do their picketing off private property.

This would seem to leave a clear course in the case of persons who occupy seats in private establishments and refuse to leave them when told to do so. They should be arrested and fined or jailed in accordance with ordinary procedure.

No right to create a public disturbance should be accorded.

Discovery of what is true and practice of what is good are the most important objects of phiosophy, wrote Voltaire, the French dramatist-reformer who died in 1778.

Sestroriesk has been a center of Russian armament works since the rule of Peter I in 1721. It is now chief supplier to the Soviets of precision instruments.

The Russian alphabet is largely made up of what were originally Roman, Greek and Hebrew letters.

In the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania there were licenses sold in 1959 to 72,000 archers to hunt deer by bow and arrow. And 1,300 deer were bagged by this method.

O. Henry said that New York City was "an aviary overstocked with jays (a country bumpkin who is a chatterbox)."

Marxian Clergy Fallacy

At Stake In Controversy Over Air Force Pamphlet Is Revised Standard Version Of Bible

Recently one of the really authentic leaders of anti-Communist activity in the United States wrote to me, "God help us from the anti-Communists."

There are so many varieties of them and some of them are so mixed up. They have a "feeling" against communism, against Russia, against many things, but they do not know why. They have an emotional antagonism to communism but they refuse to do the home-work required to know of a force that came into the world more than a century ago and now dominates the lives of close to a billion human beings. Instinctive opposition to so colossal a force is not good enough.

The pamphlet prepared for the Air Force by Homer H. Hyde is supposed to indoctrinate members of the Air Force against communism. But Hyde does not know where his data about clergymen infiltrating the Protestant churches came from. He says that he got it from Circuit Riders, Inc. of Cincinnati, from Dr. Billy James Hargis, a radio evangelist of Tulsa, from an editorial in the San Antonio "Light," and a pamphlet issued by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Actually this data appeared originally in the "American Mercury," in an article signed by Dr. J. B. Matthews, a well-informed student of the American Communist problems, whose records on the subject are perhaps the most complete. At the moment that Dr. Matthews' article appeared in the American Mercury," he was to have been appointed in charge of research for the McCarthy committee. The article created such a furor that Matthews withdrew from the post. However, Matthews never properly defended himself. He could truthfully have said that a paragraph had been "edited" into his material which made it more sensational than it would have been had there been no editing.

An issue at stake in this controversy is the Revised Standard Version of the Bible. Be it remembered that the Bible was originally written in Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek. Each English version is a translation direct or indirect from these languages. The first English translation of the Bible from the Hebrew and the Greek was that of William Tyndale, who was burned at the stake in 1536 for doing it. There have been a great many translations of and commentaries upon both the Old and New Testaments. One of the major difficulties about the King James version is that English is a changing language. Stuart English is not current English. Words have different meanings and different weights in a fluid language such as English is.

I recall once being pestered by a member of one of the sects that base themselves upon the Book of Daniel which they accept as final. This fellow insisted upon converting me to his point of view; I preferred my own wickedness. Finally, in arrogant anger, I told him to learn how to read Daniel in its original tongue and I shall discuss it with him. Of course, I was wrong. It is not essential for one to know every language but it is to be assumed that each era will translate works of significance into its own idiom.

When all of the Dead Sea Scrolls shall have become available, additional alterations in some texts may be made and scholars will quarrel about them for a century.

Those who are not scholars may be very embarrassed when they find themselves confronted by very early texts in original langages which they cannot read. As regards the Old Testament, a scholar must be fluent in Hebrew and Aramaic; he must have studied the Five Books of Moses (the Masoretic text), the Samaritan and Syriac versions, probably the Coptic text, the Targum, the Midrash, and much more. It is a life-time of devotion but there are Jewish and Christian scholars who are at work all the time. Dr. Nelson Glueck, of the Hebrew Union College — Jewish Institute of Religion, is proving, by archeological means, the veracity of Biblical place names with such skill that it assists in the geological studies of the Egyptian-Arabian peninsula area.

Whoever Homer H. Hyde is, he has not done the kind of work essential to prepare the minds of those in the Air Force to protect themselves from the fallacies of Marxian clergy.

Names Zoonoses

Animal Diseases Transmissable To Man Are Thus Designated

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Here's a new one on me. It's called zoonoses. A friend tells me he is suffering from "one of the zoonoses". Is he kidding me? Or is there really such a condition?—M. I. P.

COMMENT: He isn't kidding. But he probably considers himself "pretty special" in bandying that diagnosis around because most people don't know what it is. But let's bring him down to earth, shall we?

Zoonoses and diseases of lower animals transmissable to man. The World health organization lists 87 varieties of zoonoses. Here are a few examples: anthrax, brucelossis, Q-fever, rabies, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, typhus fever.

One of the common ones is Trichonosis which is a major health problem. According to the magazine Patterson, 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 carry trichina larvae in their muscles and internal organs. Every American consumes about three servings of infested pork a year. And up to 10 per cent of pork sausage in large city markets is infected.

In about 80 per cent of people there are no symptoms because they have only relatively few trichina per gram of muscle. For those with symptoms (muscle aches, facial swellings, fever, malaise etc.), there is no specific treatment. Prevention is the watchword: if you like pork, be sure to cook it at 140 degrees Fahrenheit for at least 30 minutes per pound.

HOW MANY CALORIES?

Mr. C. C. of Buffalo. N. Y., wants to know: "How many calories does a moderately active person need to take a day?"

ANSWER: About 15 calories per pound to maintain ideal weight.

TREATMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can you say a few words about the medical treatment of tuberculosis? I am interested in the names of the drugs usually prescribed, Sinc., Mr. K. G., Asheville, N. C.

COMMENT: In spite of the newer drugs, tuberculosis is not an easy disease to treat. Many people think that wonder drugs take care of all problems. Not so. Not so.

Nevertheless, there have been great improvements. Strict bedrest for all patients alike now appears unnecessary. Many patients need only weeks of hospital care at first; compared with months and years in previous generations.

The reason for this is the effectiveness of the newer drugs: isoniazed, which is perhaps the most potent of them all; streptomycin; and PAS (paraminosalicylic acid).

These drugs are prescribed singly or in combination. As a rule, surgery should not be considered, until they have been given a good chance (weeks or months) to wipe out the tubercular infection.

Aside to Mr. J. G. Savannah, Ga.: You will never " stop smoking" by giving up the habit "gradually."

Buy a new pack, take one puff of the first cagarette and throw the rest of the pack into the ash can. That's the only way to do it: amputate the habit; don't fiddle around with it for the rest of your life.

Medical Costs

Doctor, Hospital And Traveling Expenses Are Included

Of course you know that in counting up your medical expenses in 1959 to see if you have a deduction on the income tax you'll be filing before Apr. 15, you should include all your doctor and hospital bills. Presumably, you also know that you should include any cab fares or other traveling expenses involved in getting to and from your doctor's office.

But what if your doctor lives at a far distance from you? Can you deduct the expense of travel to and from his office — even if you carry it to the point of a transcontinental medical trip?

The answer is "yes."

A taxpayer who lived in Los Angeles took an annual trip to New York to the doctor of his choice for a medical checkup. Under the general rule, his travel expenses were deductible. But the problem in instances involving major trips is that the Treasury tries to find some way to make the cost non - deductible — for example, by claiming that you've made the trip for vacation rather than medical reasons.

Thus, in the case of the Los Angeles - New York trip, the taxpayer's wife also made the trip at the same time as a buyer for her firm. Despite this circumstance, the Tax Court found that the taxpayer took his trip not to get a vacation but to get the medical checkup, as he had stated. The court's reasoning was that if a taxpayer wants to use a doctor who lives 3,000 miles away from home rather than one nearby, that's his affair. The Treasury can't insist that he should have picked a physician nearer home.

The vitally important money-saving angle we have emphasized in the past two columns dealing with other new angles on medical expense deductions applies here too: When the courts and the Treasury disagree and the court's view favors you, the taxpayer, claim the deduction in accordance with the court's ruling. If your return is examined and your deduction is disallowed by a final settlement of the issue at stake goes against you, it simply will mean that you will have to pay the tax you would have had to pay anyway if you hadn't deducted the expense — plus a minor amount due in interest. If your deduction is permitted to stand, you've saved taxes and, quite possibly, substantial amounts.

In counting up your medical expenses, also be sure not to overlook such other not - so - obvious expenses as: Cost of eyeglasses and hearing aids; elastic stockings, artificial teeth, braces; special mattress and bedboard for arthritis; cost of laboratory tests, x-rays and examination; special ulcer food if prescribed by a doctor and not in place of a normal diet. Your medical expenses for income tax reporting purposes this spring include all costs you incurred to prevent or cure an illness during 1959.

And just as you include as medical expenses the amounts you paid to your regular family physician or dentist, so you should include amounts you may have paid for the services of a chiropractor, osteopath, authorized Christian Science practioner, etc.

A last warning before I wind up on medical expenses, though: If you are advised for medical reasons to take up what otherwise would be viewed as purely personal activities, neither the Treasury nor the courts will consider the cost of these activities as medical expenses. An an illustration, one individual was told — by his physician, to improve his physical health, and by his psychiatrist, to improve his mental health — that he should take up dancing and table tennis. He followed their advice and spent almost $10,000 in the next three years on dancing lessons, which he claimed as medical expense deductions.

But neither the Treasury nor the Tax Court considered the dance instructresses as trained in physical or psychiatric therapy. They laid down the rule that no medical expense deduction can be claimed for engaging in purely personal activities such as dancing, golf, tennis, etc.

Tomorrow: How much you can deduct for sales taxes.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Votola In 1960

Most Officeholders Won't Take Cash But They Like Votes

The year 1959 was the year of payola. And 1960 is the year of votola —again.

Payola is a trade term describing payments to disk jockeys to plug records in broadcasts. The word is new but undoubtedly will get into the dictionaries. The payments were in cash. It was a reprehensible practice, Congress now is investigating payola.

Votola hasn't become a trade term yet. It may never get into the dictionaries. It has existed under various names for a long time. The payoff is not in cash but in votes. It is often reprehensible. Congress isn't investigatin votola. It knows all there is to know about it, and so do most of the other office holders in Washington.

Let it be strongly emphasized that the overwhelming majority of office holders, Federal, State and local are dollar honest and patriotic. There have, for instance been few Senators or Representatives in Congress whose votes on legislation could be bought for cash. In nearly a half century of reporting the national scene I have not seen a half dozen public men who I believe would have entertained a cash offer.

But don't let your little friends tell you there is no votola, Virginia. You might as well tell politicians there is no November Santa Claus for the man who picks the popular side on enough issues. Votola exists and will exist as long as there is public office and its perquisites, voting blocs and close elections.

There will be close elections this year as there have always been. In New Hampshire a few years ago a Congressional race ended in an exact tie. In a record-breaking total in Texas a United States Senator was chosen by an 83-vote majority. Wilson carried California over Hughes by 3,800 votes and it was the margin of victory. Garfield defeated Hancock for the Presidency by a nation- wide popular majority of 7,023 votes or an average majority of less than three votes to a country. Governors are often elected by a handful of votes. There are enouh marginal Congressional districts to change the complexion of Conress.

What does a Senator or Representative, for instance, do when he realizes that the close race that is lost this year may be his own? Does he always vote his convictions, judgement and principles? That is where votola comes in.

The late Senator James Watson of Indiana said: "An office holder or a candidate sometimes has to rise above principle." And Tom Heflin of Alabama, chiding a colleague who had talked one way in the cloakroom and voted the opposite on roll call, said: "I suppose the gentleman feels it is easier to change his convictions than to put his constituency to the trouble of changing Congressmen."

There are a score of issues this year that have votola value and they discussed in this column from that standpoint and not on their merits or demerits.

First is Civil Rights. Senator Jacob K. Javits, Republican, New York, told the Senate that 17 populous States would be gained by the Republican party if a strong civil rights bill were passed. That is certainly a hefty chunk of votola, to use a 1960 term, or to use a 19th century political term "a great deal of sugar in the spade."

Democratic Senator Talmadge of Georgia, taking Javits to task, said: "The Senator from Georgia has never since he has been privileged to sit in this Chamber either espoused or opposed any piece of legislation on the ground that victory of our party would result."

Granting that is true, Talmadge qualified as a rare bird. At all events most Democrats frankly state that the outcome of their national convention, innumerable races and the Presidency itself can hang on the civil rights issue.

Daily Devotional

I have shewed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak. —Acts 20:35.

Here, Paul was exhorting his hearers to do honest work and be industrious, not only as a means of supporting themselves, but as a means of giving to others. Paul himself was a tent-maker and did not think it beneath his dinity to work with his hands. In exhorting generosity, he recalled the saying of Christ, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Surely the man who is able to give has already been "blessed" and the recipient of charity would gladly change places with him.

Father, help us to purge our hearts of selfishness so that we may give cheerfully and liberally. In the name of Christ we ask. Amen.

MARKET VIEWS

Wall Street Eyeing Movies

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street has its eyes on the movies.

This is something new because investors' interest in the stocks of motion picture studios has been light all through the generally rising market of the last 10 years.

The investment firm of Hemphill, Noyes & Co. took a look at the movie industry and concluded that there are some good values among such stocks.

It attributes the improved outlook to the fact that the studios are producing more multimillion-dollar "blockbusters" and are diversifying their interests.

Hemphill, Noyes also cited increasing movie attendance, a bonanza in sales of pre-1948 films to television and the reservoir of post-1948 films yet to be released for TV.

"Perhaps one of the most interesting facets of the motion picture industry is the wide range of other fields which the producing companies have entered," the analyst says.

"Some diversification has logically been made in the production of films for television. Other diversification has been in land owned by the companies for real estate and oil exploration. Some companies have gone even further afield, investing in electronics and other industries."

Movie stocks as a whole are over-depressed when related to any true statistical values, according to Hemphill, Noyes.

Brokers are of the opinion that investors' confidence in the stock market may be built up rather quickly, says Dow Jones News Service. That's because they consider the sinking spell early this week "quiet and shallow."

Traders were pictured as hoping that much of the good corporate news which went unnoticed earlier in this year "may find belated reflection and fuel an early spring rise."

"We have seen the first signs of an attempt at the development of a stronger market pattern," comments Bache & Co. "Of course the action of one particular day can't be considered conclusive.

"We feel that a longer period of consolidation and base-building will have to take place before any sort of broad and dynamic upsurge materializes."

Van Alystyne, Noel & Co. thinks the stock list has further rally ahead of it.

"It seems to us that it has now attracted a stronger following," says the brokerage firm. "We feel that further purchases of favored equities are warranted."

Travel Chart Being Drawn For Techsters

RUSTON (Special) — A travel chart approximately five feet square is now being drawn by Richard Barron, Plain Dealing art major, for use in the Student Center at Louisiana Tech by students wishing to secure transportation home in the four - states area.

The chart, a map of Louisiana, south Arkansas, west Mississippi and east Texas, will be placed in a convenient spot in the Student Center. The map will be divided into zones, each of a different color, with metal hooks along the bottom.

A student wishing to obtain transportation or a student who has extra space in his automobile and wishes to carry another rider will tag a slip of paper to the hook designating the desired terminal point.

Techsters, before departing from Ruston, may go by the chart to see if there are students desiring transportation along his route.

This plan, originating by a suggestion to the Student Senate, could eliminate the necessity of students being left at the college because of lack of transportation.

In addition to Barron, Senate members Bobby Duncan of West Monroe and Allen Guthrie of Ruston are on the committee for the chart.

Postal Workers Set Observance Of Safety Week

Monroe Post Office employees will inspect the building for hazards and hold safety meetings starting Monday, as part of "Job Safety Week".

Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said that Safety Officer George A. Bruce will be in charge of the program.

President Eisenhower slated observance of Job Safety Week for Feb. 28 through March 5.

"In the Post Office observance, emphasis will be placed on reporting accidents promptly and completely," said Hathorn.

Brief safety meetings will serve as counseling sessions for postal employees.

The Postmaster said an inspection of the federal building will be aimed at uncovering any hazardous conditions.

"Federal and state government offices, and industries plan to participate in the week. They will focus attention on efforts to reduce occupational injuries to an absolute minimum," Hathorn ex-

How To Keep Well

MEDICAL BROWSING

Excessive smoking affects the eyes in many ways. Tobacco amblyopia, a condition in which the cells of the retina and optic nerve are poisoned by nicotine, leads to dimness of vision or partial loss of sight. Many victims also drink too much.

Smokers develop bronchitis and the strain associated with coughing may lead to detachment or separation of the retina: hemorrhage may follow a severe cough. Some instances of bloodshot eyes are traced to the way many smokers sit at their work or hobby with smoke curling up into their eyes from a cigaret dangling from the mouth. In addition, smoke aggravates existing eye conditions, such as conjunctivitis.

The recent cranberry fiasco reminded us that cranberry juice has been used for years as a home remedy in kidney and bladder infections. It is not too satisfactory a treatment and hardly worth recommending, considering the long list of modern and effective urinary antiseptics on the market at present.

What is the rationale behind the remedy? Cranberry juice increases the hippuric acid content of the urine. This acid kills bacteria, provided the concentration is high enough. Cranberry juice fails, however, because only rarely does enough hippuric acid develop to destroy the causative organisms. The action is so inconsistent it is not worth recommending except over the bridge table and back fence by those who believe in folklore.

Does the color of the eyes mean anything from the medical point of view? Many researchers have tried to correlate eye coloring with different diseases

A Melbourne, Australia, dentist studied the reaction to pain and eye color in 403 consecutive subjects whose teeth were being worked on with a high speed drill. He concluded that the bluer the eyes, the less reaction to pain. He offered no explanation except that blue eyes are commoner in people of north European stock who are more phlegmatic than the dark brown eyed Mediterranean peoples.

EGGS OR STEAK?

F. W. writes: Are soft boiled eggs easier for a convalescent to digest than a tender steak?

REPLY

Yes, but since both are digestible, why not alternate them for the sake of variety?

FROZEN FOODS

J. M. writes: How safe and nutritious are frozen foods?

REPLY

Just as safe and nutritious as fresh or canned. The vitamin content of fruits and vegetables is reduced slightly on storing. In this respect they are not as nutritious as a food that is eaten five minutes after it is picked.

WOOL SOCKS

J. B. writes: Is it better for men to wear wool socks in winter, even though their feet perspire?

REPLY

Wool is warmer and more comfortable than cotton. The increased perspiration should not enter the discussion unless ringworm of the feet is present or the individual expects to remain out of doors in subzero weather for a long time.

WANTS TO GAIN

I. M. writes: Is there any special diet for a person who wants to gain weight and can't?

REPLY

Try eating more fats which, pound for pound, have twice as many calories as have carbohydrates (vegetables and sweets). This means more butter, cream, fatty meats, and salad dressings. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on gaining weight.

Khrush Says Asia, Africa Need Voice

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev told Indonesia's parliament Friday that Asia and Africa should be represented at the summit. But, he added, "maybe the time is not yet ripe."

The touring Soviet leader bitterly criticized Japan, supported Indonesia's claims to Dutch West New Guinea, lambasted the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, denounced colonialism, and preached coexistence and world disarmament.

His 46-minute speech, read by an interpreter after Khrushchev had spoken the opening paragraphs, was received mostly in silence by an audience of 300, including foreign diplomats.

President Sukarno, Khrushchev's host and guide during his 12-day tour, was not present.

Khrushchev declared Sukarno's bid for representation at the summit "is the only one which is right." He said other summit members had turned down a Soviet proposal to include neutral nations like India, and "maybe the time is not yet ripe to arrange a more representative summit conference."

But the Big Four meeting in Paris in May will lead to wider talks where African-Asian nations will have their say, he said.

Khrushchev's main theme was peace and disarmament. He said economically backward countries would benefit if the arms race were halted and the money diverted to aid.

"The peoples of the world refuse to live any longer in the sphere of tension . . . which threatens calamity," he said.

He recommended general and complete disarmament and "extensive control of it."

Wearing a conservative gray suit and fancy silk Ukraniar shirt, Khrushchev spoke from a rostrum below Indonesia's Garuda symbol, a fierce-looking eagle-like bird.

Japan's signing of a new joint U. S. security agreements threatens world peace, he declared, adding a proverb: "If you sow wind, surely you will yield a storm."

By permitting foreign—meaning —U. S. military bases on its soil, he asked if Japan intended to carry out its plan of the 1920s for the conquest of Asia.

Khrushchev called the eight-nation SEATO alliance a dangerous kind of collective colonialism and accused it of "provocations and conspiracies against Indonesia, in Cambodia and Laos."

Applause broke out only once, when Khrushchev said the Soviet Union supports Indonesia in its struggle to get possession of West Irian, or West New Guinea, from The Netherlands.

Khrushchev declared the Soviet Union at the summit will "exert all means and efforts so this meeting will be useful to all countries in the world and not only for . . . the states attending it."

The Soviet visitor flew here from Bali where his three-day stay ended with a gala dancing party while Khrushchev slept. Sukarno, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and other Russians danced into the night with Balinese maids to throbbing drums, gongs and chants.

HAS PERFECT RECORD

NEW YORK (UPI)—National Cash Register Co. said a new electronic banking machine developed by Pitney - Bowes, Inc. and National Cash sorted over 5-million checks without a single error during a three-month test at a big New Jersey bank and cut check-sorting costs by two-thirds.

Nobody Seems Anxious To Get Ex-Convict

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Henry Salisbury, an elusive ex-convict who has slipped through the hands of the law a number of times, Friday was ready to return from Atlanta to Louisiana. But there was a question of who would go after him.

Neither Sheriff William Coci of adjacent Jefferson Parish nor the parish's district attorney seemed to want the job.

Salisbury is wanted in Jefferson Parish on charges of armed robbery, attempted bribery and a weapons law violation.

Dist. Atty. Frank Langridge said he has no men to go to Atlanta to take Salisbury in custody. He said he instructed Coci to send his deputies after Salisbury.

A state policeman arrested Salisbury in Jefferson Parish last year in connection with the $1,028 holdup of a bar operator. The trooper said Salisbury attempted to bribe him for his freedom, but the officer turned him over to the sheriff's office. However, Coci's office let him go without charge.

Later, Salisbury was picked up in Atlanta on charges of holding up a truck lines operator. When the prosecution failed to produce the alleged holdup victim in Atlanta for a third time, the court ordered his release.

Then, Salisbury volunteered to return to Louisiana to face trial.

COMMONER

Princess Will Wed Photographer, 29

Princess Margaret — royal princess won't be a spinster after all.

Many feared Princess Margaret might be a spinster—faced with a serious shortage of royal eligibles in 20th Century Europe and rebuffed in her love for Peter Townsend.

Friday, love solved the problem of the old world's paucity of princes. It was announced the beautiful Princess will marry a commoner—society photographer Anthony Charles Robert Armstrong-Jones. He is just her age—29.

Commandant-in-chief of the cadets of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, president of the University College of North Staffordshire.

These titles and dozens of others, belong to Princess Margaret, who got them because her late father was King George VI and her sister is Queen Elizabeth II.

She is pretty, intelligent, and endowed with sparkling charm.

The titles and the royal responsibility had left Margaret Rose in the dating stage when she passed her 29th birthday last August.

She broke off her romance with a divorced war hero, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, in 1955 "mindful of the church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble and conscious of my duty to the Commonwealth."

She had watched time after time as young earls and barons quietly detach themselves from the "Margaret set" to marry girls who will not have to spend their time opening agricultural shows or dedicating water works.

Margaret's smile and good humor have a way of melting through protocol. She loves to dance and has often turned dull regimental visits into all-night dancing parties.

She likes meeting people but has confessed to stage fright at large public gatherings.

The princess' day begins with the newspapers—often crowded with her pictures and a line-by-line account of her evening out the night before. She reads them in bed, then has breakfast and spends the morning at her leather-topped desk on correspondence and business.

She usually lunches with Queen Mother Elizabeth. They both have apartments at Clarence House, royal residence near Buckingham Palace.

After lunch, she has long phone conversations with the Queen goes for drives or visits.

Public appearances are Margaret's job. The job gives Margaret a magnificent wardrobe, limousines, yacht trips, and the satisfaction of living up to her strong sense of duty.

But it deprives her of something any other career girl has—the right to lead a private life.

There was an oddity in the match which only a photographer would appreciate. Margaret is pretty by any standards but her nose is too long for photography.

Federated Club Women To Open Convention Here

Members of the fifth district of Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs will begin their convention at 9 a.m. today in the Virginia Hotel, with Mrs. May Oppenheimer, New Orleans, state president of the organization, scheduled to be the guest speaker.

The fifth district of the L.F.W.C. includes 15 northeast Louisiana parishes boasting 38 clubs. There are 178 clubs in the state organization.

Mrs. Annette Coolidge, president of the fifth district will receive reports from club presidents and delegates from the representative clubs on accomplishments made over the past year.

Mrs. Oppenheimer will address a noon luncheon audience on the club's administration efforts for improvement.

Mrs. Oppenheimer arrived in Monroe yesterday from New Orleans, and was greeted at the Virginia Hotel by Mrs. George Forman, Monroe, second vice-president of the fifth district L.F.W.C. and Mrs. A. J. Garvin, Monroe of the Bonhomie Book Club.

Defending state champion Fort Necessity boys fell by the wayside and Ogden's runnerup girls triumphed in a squeaker here Friday as the Class C regional playoffs advanced to the semifinal stage.

In today's semifinal action Summerfield tangles with Central of Delhi at p.m. and Georgetown clashes with Enterprise at 2:30 in the Ouachita Junior High gym. Girls' action sends Calvin against Ogden at 1 and Atlanta is pitted against Monterey at 2:30 on the Ouachita High School floor. Finals are set for 7 and 8:30 tonight, with both games being played on the junior high court.

A 23 - point performance by Blake steered the Central boys to a 52-50 victory in ousting the Fort Necessity quint from the playoffs. James Taylor tossed in 17 points for the losers, ahead 33-29 at intermission.

In other boys' competition Enterprise whipped Mer Rouge, 53-43, Georgetown crushed Lisbon, 60-44 and Summerfield, the tourney favorite, upended Eros, 65-51.

The Ogden sextet, runnerup to Negreet for state honors in 1959, squeezed past a stubborn Central squad, 35-34. In other games Monterey topped Mer Rouge, 33-30, Calvin, drubbed Hico, 56-38, and Atlanta beat Lisbon, 33-20.

Tall David Ainsworth bagged 23 points as Enterprise cruised past Mer Roube. L. J. Fontenot's losers got a 17-point effort from Alex Rankin, a hustling back courtman and Buddy Blackwell.

Mer Rouge led after the first basket but Enterprise tied it up on a set shot by Carl Booth and led the rest of the way. Mer Rouge chipped the margin to six points late in the third period on a field goal by Harold Edwards but Charley Cassels dropped in a pair for Enterprise and the losers never got closer than seven points from that point on.

Summerfield, district 5-C winner, pushed its season record to 42-7 with the win over Eros. Moss paced the victory with 22 points and Bailey followed with 19. Hayden led the losers with 23 points.

Blackshear and Maxwell connected for 17 and 14 points, respectively in the Georgetown win. Darrell McAdams hooped 12 and J. Scriber netted 12 for Lisbon. Lisbon jumped into a 13-8 advantage after one quarter but a hot second period boosted Georgetown into the lead to stay.

Atlanta's girls blanked Lisbon in the first period and built up a 16-6 halftime margin for an early win. Annie Bell Bandy netted 17 points to spark the decision and Sally Collins put in nine for Lisbon. Coach Prentice Ferguson's Atlanta sextet now holds a 40-5 chart for the overall season.

Linda Lowe scored 20 points to highlight Calvin's verdict over Hico. Carolyn Dos took game scoring honors with 24 counters.

The afternoon action produced a pair of down-to-the wire thrillers. Ogden trailed all the way until the final 30 seconds when the winning basket put them in front for the first time.

Central, district 7-C runnerup, held a slim 11-10 advantage after one period, pushed it to 23-17 at halftime and was in front, 28-27, after the third quarter turn.

Pat Alford tossed in 15 points to lead the victory while teammate L. Halton followed closely with 13. Mary Blake of Central was the game's leading scorer with 21 points.

Mer Rouge went almost three quarters against Monterey without a field goal but stayed in contention throughout the game behind some nifty foul shooting. Monterey's Betty Trisler poured in 13 points in the final quarter and dropped in the go-ahead basket with a minute to play.

Trisler led the victory with 20 points. The losers' Montgomery, scaling in at several inches under five feet, also put in 20 points, netting 14 out of 20 foul shots and adding 3 field goals.

Mer Rouge led 12-8 at the half without the benefit of a field goal and commanded a 21-13 margin after three quarters.

W. M. Juniors Advance In Linville Meet

LINVILLE, La. (Special) — Seven games were played yesterday in the quarter finals of the Linville Junior High School basketball tournament, with the host boys advancing in the play. West Monroe's girls also advanced to the semi-finals.

The boys division saw Simsboro down Farmerville 21-16 as Posey topped the winners with eight points, and Dean was high for the losers with six.

A. L. Smith of Sterlington took a decision over Bonita 40-20, paced by Bryant with 10 points. Boney was high for Bonita and the contest with 12 markers.

Downsville fell before Linville 30-19, as Franklin and Jenny led the locals with 10 points each. Williamson tossed in seven for the losers.

In the girls division, Huttig ripped Linville, as Davis notched 16 points for the winners. Ford was high for the hometown six with 12 tallies.

West Monroe romped past Bernice 29-18 led by Mize with 13 points. Williams had 14 for Bernice. A. L. Smith of Sterlington dropped Downsville 32-24. Williams was high for the winners with 17 points while Tidwell had 12 for the losers.

Winnfield girls beat Farmerville 42-27 as Love collected 19 tallies for the winners. Odom had 18 for the Farmers.

Semi - final play will begin tomorrow at the Linville High School gymnasium with the opening game at 12 noon.

Tomorrow's girls schedule will be Huttig vs. West Monroe and West Monroe vs. A. L. Smith of Sterlington.

In the boys division, Linville will play Huttig, and A. L. Smith will take on Simsboro.

GIRLS' BI-DISTRICT TILT

Neville Topples Homer, 38 To 31

By TOMMY AYRES
Staff Writer

A hustling Homer sextet forced Neville's defending AA basketball champions to put on a fourth quarter rally here last night to gain a 38-31 bi-district victory, and advance in the state playoffs.

Leading by as much as six points at one time in the second half, the Homer crew faltered in the final five minutes, and Neville moved away from a 29-29 deadlock to take the win.

Cecile Menuet, topped Neville and all scorers with 22 points before fouling out with 1:45 left in the contest. Brenda Cobb added 14 markers to the Tiger cause with six coming in the final three minutes of the contest.

Sharon Peoples put Homer in the lead in the first two minutes of the game on a three point play, and the Pelicans held on until there were only 45 seconds left in the first quarter. Cobb sunk a crip shot, added a rec throw to put Neville ahead 7-5 at the end of that period.

Emily Hollenshead, who topped Pelican scorers with 14 points tied the score with one minute gone in the second quarter. Jean Ruple put them ahead on a crip and from that point, Homer led until the last five minutes of the game.

The much shorter Pelicans stayed in the game with tremendous hustle and the driving offensive play of Peoples and Hollenshead.

Melba New, Gayle Strahan and Janet White, Homer's defenders, kept the Neville offense looking for shots most of the contest.

Hollenshead rotated between offense and defense during the game, and wound up high score for Homer.

Neville's girls, who have won the class AA championship for the past two years will next play Oakdale, on the latter's home court next Tuesday night. A win at Oakdale would put the Tigers well into the AA playoff picture, and possibly a third state basketball championship.

Homer's girls who were the runner-up team in district 1-AA, behind Springhill, wound up their season with a 12-9 record. Neville is now 21-7 for the campaign.

Jaguars Clash With Bulldogs In NAIA Final

GRAMBLING, La. (Special) The Southern University Jaguars, upset conquerors of Dillard and the host Grambling Bulldogs will meet in the championship finals of the district six NAIA basketball tournament here tonight.

Dillard, a three-time winner over Southern during the regular season and a pre -tourney favorite with a 22-1 record for the season, was dumped by the Jaguars, 69-68, as Willie Thomas, with 13 points, and Louie Bonds and John Burk, each with 12, led the way. Dillard's high scorers were Ken Vels, 18, and Louis Andrew, 17.

Grambling, with Howard Willis, Rex Tippit, Harshey West, and Charles Hodnett hot under the nets, beat Houston - Tillotson, 108-66. The point spread for Grambling's big four was Willis, 24; Tippit, 22; West, 22; and Hodnett, 20. Alvin Harris, 14, and Roy Minster, 13, led H-T.

Dillard and Houston - Tillotson meet in the consolation at 7 o'clock this evening. Grambling and Southern clash immediately after.

STRANAHAN FALTERS

Palmer Captures Texas Open Lead

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, on the way to a record in golf money winnings, cut himself a 7-under-par 65 Friday to surge into the lead after 36 holes in the $20,000 Texas Open.

Fancy putting and deadly iron shots brought the pre-tournament favorite to the top with 134 as Frank Stranahan, the first day leader with a 64, faltered to a 73. Stranahan fell to second place with 137.

Palmer, who registers from Ligonier, Pa., has won $16,122.86 this year — the largest amount ever pocketed by a player at this period of the tour.

Stranahan, playing out of Crystal River, Fla., said his putter — the one given him by fellow pro Fred Hawkins — deserted him Friday. It boosted him to a 3-stroke lead in the opening round.

But Stranahan added there were other things wrong with his game this sunshiny but cold day. "I couldn't do anything right," he mourned.

Palmer, winner of $12,000 first money in the Palm Springs, Calif., Desert Open, started out with a 15-foot birdie putt on the first hole and had no trouble throughout his round. He was drilling close to the pin and sinking putts of 6 inches to 15 feet.

Twice he rimmed the cup in tries for eagles. On 18 he drove into a bunker and used a No. 3 wood to get into still another bunker. But he wedged within 2 feet of the pin for a birdie.

The 30-year-old pro, leading money winner in 1958 and well ahead this year, said he was greatly pleased with his approach shots.

RUSTON FALLS

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Defending state class AA champion Minden squeezed out a 78-77 victory over Ruston in a bi-district encounter here last night.

David Hruska of Minden tossed in 27 points to spark the victory. Ruston's Jerry Hood took game scoring honors with 33 points and John Porter netted 24.

PANTHER GIRLS WIN

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La. (Special) —Betty Lou Johnson kept the nets sizzling as she hooped 40 points in leading the Lake Providence Panthers to a 61-38 triumph over Oberlin High School girls in a girls Class B state championship semi - final game here last night.

Lake Providence is due to play in the state finals next week. Strother led Oberlin with 30 points.

OAK GROVE FALLS

OLLA, La. (Special) — Three players hit in double figures here last night as LaSalle of Olla defeated Oak Grove, 57-36, in a class A bi-district playoff contest.

LaSalle, district 1-A champions, will meet last night's winner of the Tiodga-Dequincy contest in a regional playoff tilt.

Joe McAdams with 16 points, Billy Masters with 15 and Mack Ethridge with 12 sparked the victory over Cecil Johnson's Oak Grove quint. Dub Martin put in 18 for the losers.

LaSalle is now 27-13 for the season.

PIONEER ADVANCES

MT. HERMON, La. (Special) — Pioneer's girls advanced to the finals of the state class B basketball playoffs here last night when they downed Mt. Hermon, 63-49, behind 34 points by Mary Ross.

Pioneer built up a 33-17 lead at halftime, and coasted through the final period for the win. They will play Lake Providence March 4 at Pioneer to decide the class B girls championship.

Mt. Hermon scored the same number of points as Pioneer in the final two quarters, but could not overcome the early lead built up by the visitors.

Martha Smith poured in 23 points for the local girls.

Recreation Basketball

Brownville defeated New Light, 47-36, in a Junior "B" League basketball game last night as Reeves led the way with 14 points. Tannehill of New Light was the game's high scorer with 15 points.

St. Joseph, in the Church "A" League, and the Speedsters, of the Church "B" League, last night advanced by default to the championship finals of their respective leagues. The final playoffs will begin next week.

BI-DISTRICT BATTLE

St. Matthew's Beats Back Winnfield Challenge, 74-70

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

Blocky Frankie Accardo cooly lofted in five of six free throws in the final minute to break up skin-tight class A bi-district scrimmage and give St. Matthew's a 74-70 victory over Winnfield's game Tigers.

When Accardo stepped to the line for the first of his last-minute charity attempts, Jim Mahoney's Fighting Irish had a bare one - point advantage, 69-68, with 46 seconds left. Accardo sank two buckets, made a pair with 28 seconds left and another with 14 seconds remaining. He missed the second try at the 14 - second mark but by then the game was in the bag.

The victory for the local district 2-A champions sent them into a second round battle against the winner of the Westlake-Bunkie bi-district contest. The Irish last year lost their playoff opener to LaSalle here.

Troy Rushing's Winnfield five gave it the good college try and, if a pair of starters hadn't fouled out, might have pulled it out. The Tigers finally took over the lead in the third period after trailing all the way. They clung to their advantage until the fourth when unsung Charley Biggar whipped in a field goal with 4:50 left to give the Irish a 64-63 lead. The visitors were never ahead again.

John Varino, after a slow start, warmed up to lead all scorers with 25 points for St. Matthew's. Biggar got 20, and Accardo 14. Hot - shooting reserve Gerald Bryant led the losers with 19 points and, along with Jerry Smith, staked the Tigers to their third - period lead. Smith ended up with 18 points. Gary Carter got 13 and Don Nicklas 12.

Phenomenal accuracy at the charity line gave the Irish the victory, their 40th of the campaign against seven defeats. St. Matthew's made 32 of 41 free throws, 78 per cent. From the field, the Irish made 43.8 per cent of their tries to Winnfield's 44.6.

The loss was Winnfield's 11th of the season compared with 23 victories. Winnfield finished second in district 1-A.

Besides leading his team in scoring, Varino continued his great backboard work, pulling down 17 rebounds. He got help from Sam Marsala and Biggar, each with 11.

Winnfield's Gary Carter fouled out with about 4 minutes in the game and Don Nicklas committed his fifth infraction not too long afterward.

St. Matthew's jumped into the lead in the opening moments on free throws by Biggar and Marsala and Varino's field goal. Winnfield rallied to tie it up at 4-4 with 1:47 gone but Biggar and Accardo pulled the Irish back in front and they had a 25-21 lead at the end of the first period.

The Irish extended their advantage as high as 12 points in the second stanza, the high-water mark coming on Biggar's bucket with 5:50 left, 35-23. With Bryant and Carter pacing the comeback, however, Winnfield's invaders narrowed the count and were behind by only three points at halftime, 41-38.

Early in the third period, two buckets by Bryant and one by Smith drew Winnfield even at 44-44 with 6:50 left. The teams swapped the lead five times before a Winnfield rally in the closing minutes wrestled the lead away from the Irish. A field goal by Smith tied it up at 54-54 with 25 seconds left and Bryant put the visitors ahead with a free throw at the 10-second mark. Don Nicklas netted a long shot from the corner as the buzzer sounded to make it 57-54.

Two quick buckets by Biggar pushed the Irish back in front in the first minute of the final quarter but Bryant connected again and the lead began jumping back and forth between the two clubs again.

A field goal by Biggar and three free throws by Marsala pushed the Irish ahead by four, however, with 3:59 left, 67-63, but Bryant made another fie'd basket and Danny Allen a free toss to narrow the count to one point with 2:30 remaining. Varino and Burch matched buckets to make it 69-68 with 1:40 left.

Then, with 46 seconds left, Accardo stepped to the charity line on the first of his game-busting free throws and, for Winnfield, it was all over.

Tech, Northwestern Clash In Crucial GSC Contest

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech and Northwestern State will clash at Ruston Saturday night in a cage battle that may decide if one or two teams take the Gulf States Conference championship.

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to be on hand for the 8 p.m. tip-off time at Tech's Memorial Gymnasium.

Coach Huey Cranford's Northwesteners have already assured themselves of at least a tie for the Gulf States title. However, the visiting Demons will be hoping for a victory over the Bulldogs which will bring them their first outright conference basketball crown since the 1948-49 season.

NSC will go into Saturday night's tussle with an 8-1 GSC record and fine 23-4 mark in all games this winter. Tech's quintet, the defending champs who are out of the running for the title, are currently in third place in the loop chase with a 4-4 standing. The Bulldog win over Springhill College Thursday gave the Techmen a season record of 15 victories against nine setbacks.

A win for the Demons will give the visitors the Gulf States championship outright. A victory for the Techmen might allow Southwestern Louisiana to grab half the crown, depending on the outcome of the Southwestern-Southeastern game at Hammond Friday night. SLI goes into Friday's game with a 7-2 GSC mark and a second place position in the league.

Dunkel's rating system, which lists Northwestern in its top ten of the college division, gives NSC the edge over Tech by one point. United Press International this week listed Northwestern 11th and Tech 12th in the nation in its college division rankings.

With two first stringers back in the lineup following injuries, Coach Cecil Crowley's Techsters hope to snap a 14-game winning streak now held by Northwestern and to revenge a 90-71 loss to the Demons at Natchitoches on Feb. 8.

Both center Jack Moreland and guard Jim Tullos were back with Tech's starting unit for the Springhill game Thursday and are expected to start in the Saturday night fray. Neither saw action in the earlier game with Northwestern, Moreland being out with a sprained ankle and Tullos benched with a broken finger. Other starters for the Canines probably will be Ray Germany and Joe Daigle at forwards and Ron Woodward at guard.

Big guns for the Demons in thir Feb. 8 victory over Tech were guards Larry Skinner with 32 and Gene Wright with 23 points. Germany was Tech's high point man in the first meeting with 16 markers.

Tech and Northwestern in past years have hooked up in some thrillers at the Tech Memorial Gymnasium and Saturday night's battle probably will be no exception. The two quintets have met here on the Memorial Gymnasium court a total of nine times. Tech has won seven and NSC has won two.

Last year when the NSC team traveled to Ruston, the Bulldogs walked off with an 88-59 victory won their way to the GSC championship.

Saturday night's contest is shaping up somewhat similar to the situation at the end of the 1957-59 season. NSC came to Ruston for its last tilt of the season needing only to defeat Tech to share the Gulf States title with McNeese. A win for Tech would have put the Demons finishing second. The two teams had to go into an overtime period before Northwestern finally took an exciting 72-66 win.

Monday night the Tech cagers will close out the 1959-60 season in another conference game at Ruston when the Bulldogs play host to Southeastern Louisiana College.

TECH CAPTAIN Ron Woodward, who saw little action in several games because of illness, will be in the starting lineup along with Jack Moreland and Jim Tullos, out with injuries until recently, when Louisiana Tech and Northwestern clash at Ruston tonight.

Shoemaker's Head Cut In Racing Spill

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—National riding champion Willie Shoemaker sustained a bad head cut Friday when he fell from his mount at the start of the third race at Santa Anita Park.

The 28-year-old jockey was rushed to the track hospital by ambulance after his horse, Graphite, stumbled and threw him.

Shoemaker appeared to be unconscious when taken from the track but was conscious a few minutes later when examined in the track hospital.

Later he was removed to nearby Arcadia Methodist Hospital for precautionary head X-rays.

Rebs Nip Rams In Season Finale

BASTROP, La. (Special) — West Monroe's Rebels swept into the lead on a 24-point scoring surge in the second period and went on to defeat Bastrop, 54-51, and leave themselves alone in district 1-AAA's fifth place.

West Monroe girls, once-beaten this season, won the night's first game easily, 58-37.

The games ended the season for both schools.

Behind as the second quarter began, 11-8, L. V. Norris' Rebs outscored Bastrop by seven points in the second stanza to take over the lead, 32-28. The Rebels stayed in front to record their sixth victory of the season against 21 losers. In the district, West Monroe ended at 3-7 to Bastrop's 1-9.

Roy Lee Scroggins led the scoring for the winners with 21 points while Joe Kraburg got 14 and Oliver Schulz 12. George Madison paced Bastrop with 13 and Floyd Murry and Allen Burch got 13 each.

Nancy Smith scored 32 points to spark West Monroe to victory in the girls' game. Ann Chapman contributed 15.

Carolyn Robinson led Bastrop with 20 markers.

Lions End SLI Title Hopes With 75-67 Triumph

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — Southeastern Louisiana upset Southwestern Louisiana 57-67 Friday night and snuffed out SLI's first place hopes in the Gulf States conference. SLI's loss gave the title to Northwestern State.

The loss gave Southwestern a 7-3 league mark, out of reach of NSC's 8-1 record. GSC teams play a 10-game schedule.

SLC jumped out to a 14-1 lead, held a 41-34 halftime advantage, and kept SLI at bay throughout the second half.

SLI's Tiny Thompson was high scorer with 24. Wayne Newsome had 22 for SLC.

SLC, in third place in the GSC with a 5-4 record, dropped two earlier games to SLI, one a conference tilt. SLC's overall record is 12-11. SLI's season mark is 20-8.

NSC will play its closing game Saturday night against Louisiana Tech.

Visiting team members will stay in the homes of Olla students and visit in the school.

JENKINS WINS SKATING TITLE

Yanks Capture 2nd Gold Medal

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Dave Jenkins turned in a dazzling free skating exhibition Friday to keep the Olympic men's figure skating title in the United States and in the family.

Jenkins, whose brother Hayes won the Olympic gold medal at Cortina, Italy, in 1956, erased an early lead compiled in compulsory skating by Karel Divin of Czechoslovakia.

The performance by the 23-year-old medical student from Western Reserve in Cleveland completed the first back-to-back gold medal performances by brothers in the Winter Games.

Jenkins gave the United States its second gold medal, the first having been won by Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N.Y., in women's figure skating.

Anne Heggtveit, 21, Ottawa blonde, won the women's slalom ski race in 1 minute 49.6 seconds and Betsy Snite of Norwich, Vt., took second with 1:52.9. Penny Pitou of Gilford, N.H., who won second place silver medals in the giant slalom and downhill, fell on her second run and finished in 2:19.8 for 35th.

Russia lodged a formal protest against Sweden as the result of a spill in the women's 15-kilometer (9.32 miles) cross-country ski relay race, first of its kind in these Games challenging a gold medal winner. Sweden won the race in 1 hour, 4 minutes and 21.4 seconds with the favored Russians second.

The international jury declined to act until it could see movies of the incident. These will not be availab'e before Sunday night.

American hopes for a third gold medal rest with its scrappy ice hockey team which Thursday night upset Canada 2-1 and rested Friday. The Americans meet Russia Saturday in a game that probably will decide the championship. It will be televised nationally, beginning at 4:30 p.m., EST, by CBS. Russia has been tied by Sweden 2-2.

Eugeni Grishin of Russia won his second gold medal of these Games and his fourth over a four-year period by skimming through the men's 1,500-meter speed skating in 2 minutes, 10.4 seconds. However, he had to share first place with Roald Edgard Aas if Norway, who made the same time. Each received gold medals.

Jenkins went into the free-skating finals knowing he had to go all out. In the school figures, which count 60 per cent of the total score, he was second to Divin who had 797.7 points to Jenkins' 775.2.

"He skated the greatest anybody ever skated," said his delighted coach, Edi Scholdan of Co'orado Springs. The judges' marks bore this out. Jenkins actually got a 6, which is perfection, from one judge, and 5.9 and 5.8 from most of the rest. Every judge put him ahead of Divin.

He mixed graceful dance steps with daring acrobatics. He made two double axels—jumps with 2½ turns in the air—and a triple salchow — two and three quarters turns from a backward jump off one foot.

The capacity crowd of 8,500 in Blyth Arena went wild.

Except for a blustery wind, the weather was fine, with a warm sun beating down on the valley. The crowd was announced as 17,150, bringing the total for the Games, which end this Sunday, to 133,904.

Finland finished third in the women's cross-country ski relay race. Poland was fourth, and Germany fifth. Only five teams, none from the United States, competed.

S. Bogachiv, manager of the Russian cross-country team, charged in his formal protest that Irma Johanssin of Sweden who was skiing on an inside track, crossed over to the outside on a sharp turn and ran over Radia Eroshina's skis, spilling the Russian girl.

Siiri Rantanen of Finland and Stefania Biegun of Poland also piled up on the Soviet miss, said Bigachiv, while Miss Johansson sped away, building up a lead that the favored Russian team could not overcome.

Co'or movies were taken of the stretch where the incident occurred and the international jury decided to see these before arriving at a verdict.

The new Canadian ski champion literally went for broke.

"I decided I was going to crash, or stand up and do very well," said Miss Heggtveit.

She put together brilliant times of :54.0 and :55.6 for 1:49.6 — faster by 2.7 seconds than Miss Snite.

Betsy was quick to congratulate the new champion.

"You were terrific," she said, throwing her arms around Miss Heggtveit. "I'm just happy I didn't fall."

Miss Pitou, after an excellent first run in :56.5, crashed one third of the way down but recovered and finished in 1:21.3 for a total of 2:19.8.

Renie Cox of Port Leyden, N.Y., came in ninth with 1:59.2 and Beverly Anderson of Mullan, Idaho, substituting for the injured Linda Meyers of Mammoth Lakes, Calif., finished 36th in 2:13.1.

As expected, the United Stotes fared poorly in the 1500-meter skating.

Richard Hunt, Los Angeles, was 17th with 2:17.7. Then came Floyd Bedbury, St. Paul, Minn., 22nd, 2:18.9; Keith Meyer, Glen Ellyn, Ill., tied for 29th with Yoshitaka Hori, Japan, 2:21.7; and Eddie Rudolph, Northbrook, Ill., 35th, 2:23.1.

In all, 45 finished the race, run off two men at a time in the blustery, raw wind.

Calhoun's Goal Wins Tilt At Farmerville

FARMERVILLE, La. (Special) — Huey Calhoun sank a field goal with five seconds to go in an overtime period to give Nelm's Service Station of Calhoun a 52-51 victory over Oglesby Grocery of Dubach to highlight the first day of the Farmerville Independent Tournament.

Pete's Cities Service of Ruston routed the Bryan All-Stars of West Monroe, 74-35, and the Northeast All-Stars beat Eros, 73-57, in the day's other games.

The score in the Nelm's - Oglesby game was tied at 43-all at the end of regulation time. Scottie Sims was the leading scorer for the winners with 19 points. Moon got 13 for Oglesby.

Bob Talley poured in 36 points to spark Pete's while Lewis Miletello put in 29 for Bryan's Stars. Levy Redden led the scoring with 19 points and Norman Garlington sparked a third-period rally that gave Northeast the lead in the final game of the night. Jim White of Eros led all scorers in the game with 26 points.

In first round games today, the Ruston Crumbz meet Ha'e Bros. Loggers, who replaced Chatham in the meet, at 9:30, Benny Hollis' Northeast Freshmen play Kilpatrick-Gresham at 10:45 and City Drug of Farmerville and A&P Grocery of Monroe clash at 1:00.

Dixie League Organized In Union Parish

FARMERVILLE, La. (Special) — Baseball boosters formed a Dixie League in a meeting here last night and elected officers for the new loop as well as the established Union Parish Little Boys League.

The Dixie League program, for boys 13 and 14 years of age, was set up with six teams with the possiblity of two more entering later.

Elected president of the new league was Sheriff Jurde Stewart. Ingram Ballard was elected vice president and Royce Bird secretary. Directors are Glyn Post Jr., R. G. Hicks and A. J. Lautigar.

League managers chosen were J. G. Elliott to pilot the Farmerville team, Post of Marion, Simon Pearson of Bernice, Dan Albritton of Hopewell, J. T. Savage, D'Arbonne and "Coot" Gates of Rocky Branch. Junction City and Spearsville are the tentative entries.

Murry Cole was elected president of the Little Boys League with Sam Ward to serve as vice president and Buddy Guier as secretary.

Melvin Taylor of Marion, Thomas Huffman of Bernice, Jewel Williamson D'Arbonne Ralph Ashby, Downsville, Earnest Booth, Hopewell and James Hightower, Junction City, were elected directors.

Victor Antley was named umpire-in-chief for games at Farmerville and Merle Elliott for contests outside the parish seat.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS SYLVIA GENTRY, whose wedding to Charles Wilkins Jr. will be an event of this afternoon, was surprised Thursday afternoon at a bridal shower given by Mrs. Ralph Armstrong and Mrs. R. P. McKay, in the Armstrong home on North Third Street. Here Mrs. J. W. Cummins (seated) serves from left to right, Mrs. Herschel Gentry, mother of the honoree, and Miss Gentry, Mrs. Gardner Nagle, and Mrs. J. L. Whipkey.

Surprise Bridal Shower Compliments Miss Gentry

A surprise bridal shower was given Thursday afternoon to honor Miss Sylvia Gentry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gentry, whose marriage to Charles Wilkins Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Wilkins of Baton Rouge, will be an event of this afternoon, at the University Methodist Chapel on the L. S. U. campus. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. R. P. McKay and Mrs. Ralph Armstrong, in whose home the event was held.

White carnations and stock, baby breath and fern ornamented the mantel and piano in the living room of the Armstrong home, where guest were received by Mrs. Armstrong, in a navy blue lace model, and Mrs. McKay, wearing a dress of pink faille. Miss Gentry chose for the occasion a white lace sheath fashioned with white fur on the sleeves, and at her shoulder was pinned a corsage of white flowers. Mrs. H. A. Gentry's sheath was of red velveteen.

A bridal corsage tied with white satin ribbon was on the secretary, and hanging from white ribbon in the doorway between the living and dining rooms were white wedding bells. In the dining room, small white and pink wedding bells decorated a white driftwood tree on the china cabinet.

Mrs. J. W. Cummins and Mrs. Gardner Nagle presided at the tea and punch services. Assisting with the courtesies was Mrs. J. L. Whipkey.

The refreshment table was covered with an embroidered pink and white Belgian cloth and held a wedding scene centerpiece. Standing before an altar and beneath an arch of white carnations and greenery were a miniature bride and groom and two attendants with other small dolls looking on. Flanking this were silver candlesticks with white candles decorated with silver bells.

Mrs. Max Mickey registered guests in the bride's book, as follows: Mrs. E. H. Gentry Sr., Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Mrs. Herschel Gentry, Mrs. Hays Gentry, Mrs. B. A. Gentry, Mrs. Don Auger of Farmerville, Mrs. George Temple, Mrs. Leroy Anspach, Mrs. Melba Gentry, Mrs. Few Easterling, Mrs. Clay Albright, Mrs. Bobbye Galloway, Mrs. Parker Colvin, Mrs. Henry Mayo Sr., Mrs. Tobo Woods, Mrs. D. F. Dennis, Mrs. W. L. Jones Jr., Mrs. Joe F. Smith, Mrs. Robert Cowden, Mrs. Mabel Ford, Mrs. Ed Hislop Jr., Mrs. L. L. Nunally, Mrs. A. J. Lester, Mrs. E. N. Jackson, Mrs. Charles Hays, Mrs. Jack Ratliff.

Mrs. J. C. Anders, Mrs. J. W. Womack, Miss Jeanette Brooks, Miss Anne Armstrong, Mrs. Allen Turpin, Mrs. D. A. Strickland, Mrs. Bruce Brooks, Mrs. Harry A. Genung, Mrs. A. S. Oliver, Mrs. R. D. Whitecotton, Mrs. Jack Davis, Mrs. Robert Downing, Miss Lallage Feazel, Mrs. W. C. Feazel, Mrs. Thomas Keller, Mrs. James A. Noe, Mrs. Ben Downing, Mrs. H. K. Touchstone, Mrs. C. U. Johnson, Mrs. William Inabnet, Mrs. H. R. Hayes, Mrs. Max Mickey, Mrs. Paul Crowell, Miss Ruth Ann Boggs, Miss Fran Guthrie, Miss Linda Keller, Mrs. Bob Tucker, Mrs. Noland Harvey Jr., Mrs. B. O. Yeldell, and Miss Linda Woods.

Yesterday noon Mrs. P. A. Colvin was hostess at a luncheon to honor Miss Gentry at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

A silver tray and corsage of red carnations were presented to the honoree, who was wearing a blue wool sheath trimmed in white.

The table was set with a white cloth and centerpiece of fruit and foliage. Guests present included Mrs. H. A. Gentry, Miss Fran Guthrie, Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, Mrs. Gerald Busby, and Mrs. Fred Huenefeld.

Country Club Setting For Auxiliary Luncheon

Mrs. Seymour Solomon, president of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Fifth District Dental Association, presided when that organization held its regular monthly meeting with a luncheon at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club on Tuesday of last week.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. John Cole, Mrs. Fred Amman, and Mrs. Ralph King Jr.

The business of the day included a discussion of the results of Dental Health Week, held the second week in February. Spot radio and television announcements had been made, as well as newspaper articles written concerning the project.

Mrs. Solomon reminded the members of the State Dental Meeting to be held in New Orleans during April, and encouraged all to make plans to attend.

Among those at the luncheon were Mrs. S. A. Collins, Mrs. N. G. Gaston, Mrs. Henry H. Davis, Mrs. J. C. Earnest, Mrs. H. D. Mullis, Mrs. James Padgett, Mrs. Max Funderburk, Mrs. Herbert Mayo, Mrs. W. E. Smith Jr., and Mrs. James G. Henry.

Book Club Meets For Luncheon

Members of The Welcome Book Club met for their February meeting and luncheon at the Y.W.C.A. on February 17. Hostesses for the day, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, and Mrs. C. S. Swain greeted guests in the hall and invited them into the parlor and meeting room which was brightened with arrangements of Professor Sargent camellias Luncheon tables in the dining room held trailing ivy interspersed with camellias, the central focal point of the buffet table being a large heart completely covered with the same flowers.

Business included the acceptance with regret of the resignation of Mrs. O. O. Cummings and the election of two new members, Mrs. Frances Breedlove and Mrs. Thomas Jones. A letter was read from Mrs. George Forman, inviting members to attend "A Day In Court" and a tour of the detention home on March 2nd. The Club voted to subscribe for copies of "The Clubwoman" for each member during the coming year. Plans were announced for the Fifth District meeting to be held in the Virginia Hotel on February 27.

Mrs. V. S. Garnett presented Mrs. Jimmie Terry who sang, "Black Is the Color of My True Love's Hair" and "Autumn Serenade." She was accompanied by Mrs. Estelle Sanders.

The Federation Committee discussed the work of the Federation of Women's Clubs and the following officers were elected for the next two years: president, Mrs. Ben Parnell; vice president, Mrs. Henson Coon; second vice president, Mrs. George V. Raymond; recording secretary, Mrs. M. B. Marchman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A J. Speer; treasurer, Mrs. Kettering; parliamentarian, Mrs. F. E. Black; reporter, Mrs. Dwight Jetty; historian, Mrs. Fred Poe.

Bono Nostrorum Club Discusses 'Day In Court'

The Bono Nostrorum Club met in the home of Mrs. B. N. Hixon in Rayville on Tuesday evening of last week, and were served a supper plate prior to a discussion of the club's business.

Co-hostess with Mrs. Hixon was Mrs. C. N. Underwood, who appointed Mrs. J. W. Douciere and Mrs. E. B. Busbice as delegates to "A Day in Court" at City Hall in Monroe on March 2.

Members present for the meeting were Mesdames H. J. Brown, H. L. Murray, Maude Parham, Annette Coolidge, E. D. Baker, C. W. Jones, and Misses Ethel Watson, Virgie Evans, and Kate Talbert.

Miss Watson will be hostess for the March meeting.

NEW FABRIC

A new fabric, nylon "horsehair," has come out of the test-tubes and into fluffy petticoats and slips for young misses from toddler to teen.

This new material is guaranteed to stay stiff and bell-like through repeated washings, and gives full skirts the gentle support they need.

Rheumatics Now Using Penicillin

By BETTY REEF

NEW YORK (WNS) — A monthly injection of penicillin is being used to keep thousands of child victims of rheumatic fever in good health.

Repeated use of penicillin recently fell into disfavor; many doctors reasoned it would become ineffective if used too frequently, and thus a patient would not benefit from it in a crisis. Doctors now find this possibility offset by its effectiveness in preventing streptococcal infections which may set off repeated rheumatic fever attacks.

Such attacks cause added heart damage each time they hit. So youngsters who have recovered from rheumatic fever are being kept on a long-term regimen of intramuscular penicillin injections.

This heads off the strep throats and upper respiratory infections which seem to trigger return attacks of the disease, one of the leading causes of serious heart trouble.

A for thcoming issue of the medical publication, "Patterns of Disease," reports that rheumatic fever, though still a major scourge among youngsters, is on the wane. In 1910, it killed 14 out of every 200,000 persons. Now the annual mortality rate is only 1 in 100,000.

Nevertheless it is still a major medical problem.

According to "Patterns," about 2,000,000 people in the United States have had or will develop during their life span an attack of rheumatic fever, and half of these will suffer damaged hearts as a result.

Once interpreted as "growing pains," rheumatic fever attacks mainly the young, with the 5-to-12 age group the most vulnerable. About one in every 100 schoolage children has had the disease.

Most often it follows an infection like strep throat, tonsilitis, or scarlet fever. Its symptom are so vague that diagnoisis is difficult. But a fast pulse, pains in the joints, and constant low-grade fever, when confirmed by certain blood tests, indicate its presence.

Treatment is fairly simple — antimicrobial agents against streptococci, aspirin or adrenocorticial steriods to suppress heart inflamation, and bed rest until the attack subsides.

People used to live as semi-invalids after they had once contracted rheumatic fever. But now the great majority can live completely normal lives once the disease is no longer evident. Doctors oppose overprotection.

Instead they concentrate on preventing recurrence, since every attack may increase cardiac damage. Penicillin has proved the best method. Although some organisms have developed resistance to this antibiotic, it appears continuously effective against "strep" germs.

Based on observation of a four-year study of monthly penicillin injections used as a precautionary measure, some doctors are even recommending continuing this procedure throughout the life of children who have had severe rheumatic fever cases. However, most continue it only between the ages of 6 and 13, when the risk of recurrence is greatest.

For children with past history of allergy or with poor reactions to penicillin, sulfa drugs are used.

The recurrence rate has declined, but risk is still high. "Patterns" indicates: about one in seven for youngsters under 13. The longer a child is, kept free of the disease after he recovers from an attack, the less chance of another attack. Time — and age — seem to increase his resistance.

All Europe Changing Smells

By IRIS HARTMAN

FLORENCE (WNS) — Let there be fragrance wherever she goes!

Scented shoetrees are the fad in Italy. They whiff away daytime foot odors while straightening out shoe wrinkles at night. They're made of heavy linen and filled with pinewood or cedarwood sawdust to which a mixture of fragrant oils has been added.

A scented shower bath is at your fingertips in Paris. Inventor-merchant Rene Plemes has made it possible by attaching a liquid-soap dispenser to the water faucets. When filled with fragrant bath oil, it scents milady's shower whenever the dispenser is touched or tilted.

Switzerland has experts experimenting with scented cheeses — for export only. Adding the essence of French strawberries and other fruits that have more odor than taste, they will be able to give strong cheeses a pretty smell without spoiling the flavor.

And farmers in the French garlic belt surrounding Clermont-Ferrand are trying to produce odorless or even sweet-smelling garlic.

"The man who is afraid of garlic is afraid of life," declared Pierre Borlut, garlic expert. "But we've got to think about garlic-lovers who made the mistake of marrying anti-garlic wives."

Questions And Answers Guide For Homemakers

By BETTY PEPIS

Q.—I would like your opinion on my living room color scheme. I have aquamarine walls, ivory woodwork, beige rug. Sofa is antique rose, one chair turquoise, another chair antique gold. The furniture is French Provincial in cherry. I plan to have beige draperies with a fleur-de-lis pattern in turquoise. I want to use ivory Austrian shades. Is there a regular curtain I could use with a draw-string rather than have the shades custom made. (Which would probably cost a fortune.)

A.—I would strongly advise against the Austrian shades. Though pretty, they are hardly practical. They require a great deal of fabric, and are difficult and expensive to clean. I think you should use straight, pinch pleated curtains in an ivory fabric. Your scheme could be improved by covering gold chair rose, slightly deeper than the sofa. Painting woodwork the color of walls would help unify your background.

Q.—I plan to decorate a room for my young son. I want to paper the walls in a plaid. There will be twin beds and bureaus. I will make bedspreads, curtains, and a rug. What colors should I use?

A.—The plaid on four walls might be somewhat an overwhelming effect. Use a large scale Tartan plaid in red, black, and white on one wall only, for the others use medium beige. Repeat beige on woodwork and ceiling. By all means use one of the new washable papers for this. Curtains and bedspread could be of red denim, sturdy enough to withstand wear and tear. The rug, I presume, will be a hooked rag rug. I would advise a tweedy effect, rather than definite pattern—reds and blacks on beige.

Q.—What color in a washable fabric should I use to slipcover sofa and two chairs and make draperies? Walls are seafoam green with white woodwork. Furniture is mahogany, lamps are white and gold. I would also like a new carpet.

A.—A chintz in sandalwood with fruit or flower pattern in white, green and sky blue, or a cotton print in olive green could be used for all seating pieces. An off-white fiberglass sheer, which can be washed and requires no pressing, for draperies. Rug could be sandalwood, olive or sky blue.

Child's Urge To Climb Should Be Gratified

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Children will climb. It is an urge we need to gratify. Often it can be done with steps up which a child must learn to climb with the watchful parent right behind and then learn to back down again, going from step to step on knees.

For older children, two or thereabouts, a small, squat ladder which can be fastened firmly is useful, or a series of boxes nailed into steps; or an outdoor climbing apparauts simuar to those used in school yards.

Mrs. V.M. says her 17-month-old girl is running her ragged. "She climbs like a monkey and sometimes falls and hurts herself. She cries for a short time and I show her that it is this which made her fall but she goes right back and climbs the same thing again. Nothing is too high for her.

SPRINKLES POWDER

"She will get into my cupboard and sprinkle the scouring powder around all over the floor. I slap her hands and say no and then she takes something else and pours it around. I try to get her attention to other things but as soon as my back is turned, or I am at the telephone, she is at it again.

"She understands well and is almost toilet trained, staying dry almost all the time and never soiling. She has a 3-year-old brother whom she leads into mischief. Is there any toy you can suggest I get for her?"

Of course, the small ladder mentioned above would be suitable. Also, since she is of an age to want to puddle in products, give her some finger paints, or some clay and of course sand, when the time for sand-piles is here. You can use beans or rice or other dry cereals and give them to the children to play with.

Even mixing up some flour and water paste and giving them pictures to paste on large sheets of old newspapers, will satisfy this desire to have their hands in thick, messy materials.

LOCK DOORS

If you want to keep her out of the cupboard, then put some fasteners or even locks on the doors high enough so she can't reach them. Often it helps to put a gate on the door of the children's bedroom, out of which they can see but not climb over. Their toys, of course, should be with them. This is a help while you are busy and can't keep your eye on them.

But do satisfy this natural urge to climb. The parent is more apt to be frightened about this than the child and if the places she climbs are sturdy, she won't hurt herself seriously. A few falls are natural to children, and you build up her self-confidence by not making her afraid to take natural risks.

Drug Probe Suspended By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate hearings on drug industry practices were suspended indefinitely Friday with a statement by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) that slanted advertising claims present an intolerable situation.

Kefauver said it was clear from testimony that disagreements between medical and advertising men over advertising claims were not always settled in favor of the physicians.

That this is a bad and intolerable situation is recognized by the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Assn. in its own code of ethics, Kefauver said. Quoting the code's declaration that all medical claims in promotional material should have medical review before being released, Kefauver said rigorous enforcement of the code "would be a good place to begin."

"If they do not do so," Kefauver said, "I have no doubt that the Congress, or an agency of government, will do it for them."

Kefauver is chairman of an antitrust and monopoly subcommittee that has been investigating pricing and other practices in the drug industry.

He said it was impossible to continue the hearings under present conditions which forced the subcommittee to meet early in the morning and late at night to avoid conflicts with the Senate debate on civil rights legislation.

During the civil rights debate the Senate is enforcing a rule that committee meetings may not be held while the Senate is in session.

Kefauver said that unless the pharmaceutical code gives medical men clear-cut authority over advertising claims, it is just "meaningless double talk" which at best would cause confusion and at worst would present "a source of danger to the patient's health."

He made his statement after Dr. Martin A. Seidell testified he resigned as a medical director for a New York drug company, Charles Pfizer & Co., to protest what Seidell called its "perverted marketing attitudes," including some advertising claims.

The Pfizer Co. disputed Seidell's testimony in a statement Thursday.

Supreme Court Denies Writs In Solon Case

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Supreme Court Friday denied writs seeking to prevent the trial of state Rep. Patrick McGittigan of New Orleans.

McGittigan, elected Jan. 9 to another term in the Legislature, is charged with violating the state's corrupt influences act. He is accused of accepting $2,000 from an Alexandria couple to seek the release of their son from the state penitentiary.

The court said it found no error in law in connection with McGittigan's indictment in East Baton Rouge Parish.

A defense attorney contended the West Feliciana Parish court should have jurisdiction in the case since the charge stemmed from an alleged offense in that parish, site of the prison.

McGittigan is accused of accepting the money from Mr. and Mrs. Ignazzio Bruno to influence the release of Patrick J. Bruno.

The defense contends the money in question was given to the legislator as a contribution to his campaign for re-election.

Dist. Atty. J. St. Chair Favrot of Baton Rouge said the trial would be delayed until sometime after current jury trials, expected to run into at least late next month, are finished. He added that McGittigan's trial would not be before a jury.

DEAR ABBY

Listen Politely, Then Use Your Own Judgment

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a brother who insists that there is nothing wrong with his hearing. But everyone who knows him knows that he is very deaf.

Why doesn't he admit it and do something about it? It is so aggravating to have to yell at him and repeat everything three and four times.

When I tell him I will pay for the doctor's examination and for the hearing aid which he surely needs, he argues and insists that he can hear as well as I can. What do you do with a stubborn brother like that?

TIRED OF YELLING

DEAR TIRED: Until your brother is willing to admit that his hearing is defective you might as well be talking to the wall. Arrange for him to meet someone who has had a similar problem and licked it. First-hand experience will mean more to him than your constant harping. There is none so deaf as he who will not hear.

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary with a responsible position. My boss trusts me an dleaves me in charge of the office most of the time.

Lately his wife has been phoning me and telling me what to do and what not to do. My boss does not know of this. Since he has complete confidence in my ability to run the office, I feel that I should not have to take orders from her. Should I tell my boss or should I tell his wife off?

COMPETENT

DEAR COMPETENT: Listen to the boss' wife courteously when she calls you. Then use your own judgment. If trouble develops—tell your boss.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I'm an ungrateful person, but my problem is an overly generous husband. In the 12 years of our marriage, he has picked out and "surprised me with" every stitch of clothing I own. He likes to surprise me by bringing home complete outfits. He'll come home and dump all the packages on the bed. He is so proud of knowing the size of my shoes, gloves, hats, hose and dresses, I hate to hurt him. His taste is good so I can't complain. But I never have the fun of shopping for myself. How can I let him know I appreciate his surprises but I'd like to go along and shop, too?

SURPRISED

DEAR SURPRISED: I am SURPRISED at YOU! Most women would be happy to have your problem. If you want the "fun" of shopping, find out HIS size and shop for him.

Beauty Queens Reign After State Contest

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Three beauty queens reigned here Friday after a contest featuring everything from a hula to a recital of Kipling.

Judy Adams won the title of Miss East Baton Rouge and will compete in the Miss Louisiana contest in New Orleans later this year. Carolyn Ann Cherry won the Miss Holiday title and will enter the Holiday in Dixie competition in Shreveport. Mary Ann Polozola won the Miss Festival title.

Queens from the Thursday night pageant and the rival Miss Capital City Pageant, to be held April 20-21, will go to the Miss Louisiana contest. Harry J. Batt Sr., promoter for the state event, said he would accept the rival queens.

Planning On Artist Series Is Underway

CROSSET, Ark. (Special) — Campaign plans are bing formulated this week in Crossett for their 1960-61 Community Concert series.

Mrs. Amy Wilcox, New York representative of Community Concerts, is in Crossett now working with the Board of Directors of the Crossett Community Concerts on a season with an expanded porgram designed to appeal to more people.

Crossett is one of the smallest towns in the state to bring Community Concerts to its people. Enthusiastic support from Portland, Wilmot, Hamburg, Parkdale, Bastrop, and Monticello has done much to keep the Concerts coming to Crossett for the past five years.

Special effort will be made this year to attract students to the series.

E. M. Godat, President of the Crossett board, stated that the week beginning April 17th will be Membership Drive week. The last scheduled concert for this season will be the St. Louis Trio, scheduled for April 25th.

Initiation Set For Seven At Northeast State

Initiation of seven Northeast State students into Kappa Alpha Order and preparation for traditional spring events have filled the week's calendar of the collegiate chapter.

The social fraternity will entertain rushees tonight at a dance at the Progressive Men's Club. The affair will begin at 8 p.m.

Newly - initiated members include James Bruno of St. Joseph; Joe Wayne Johnston and Joe Conger, both of Oak Ridge; David Vail of Bastrop, Pete Bergeron of Houma; Jim Harper and Clayton Cole, both of Monroe.

First step toward readying for the annual "Ole South" week end will find Kappa Alpha members growing beards which will be worn until the end of the celebration. Climaxing the special week will be the formal dance at which the new Kappa Alpha Rose, Northeast coed, will be crowned and officially presented to the membership, their dates and special guests.

Olla Resident Seriously Hurt In Car Crash

An Olla woman, Mrs. C. D. Blazier, was seriously injured about 2:30 p.m. yesterday when a car in which she was riding went out of control and crashed into a parked truck about two miles east of Arcadia.

The injured woman's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Spears, were also in the car but were not injured. No one was in the parked truck when the crash occurred.

Hospital attendants at St. Francis last night said Mrs. Blazier was suffering from a broken collar bone, several broken ribs, and various bruises and lacerations. She was in serious but not critical condition.

According to state police who investigated the accident, the wreck occurred at an overpass and curve east of Arcadia, just inside Lincoln parish, where the highway had been salted over to prevent icing.

The auto, driven by Spears, was heading west and evidently went out of control without warning, turned almost a complete circle, and smashed into the parked truck. State Troopers said the driver stated he did not know what caused the car to go out of control, but indicated the road covering of salt might have been the cause.

Police Blotter

CHARGED

A West Monroe man was charged by police yesterday on three separate charges and placed under $500 bond, officers of the Monroe police department reported.

James K. Phillips, 39, 303 Garland street, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving, and driving without a valid state drivers' license.

UNDER BOND

An Alabama man was placed under $360 bond yesterday after he was picked up by Monroe police and charged with vagrancy. He was identified as Odis Keenum, 32, Musil Shoals, Ala.

ARRESTED

O. Z. Hicks, 23, 205 Breard street, Monroe, was placed under $210 bond yesterday after he was charged by police on two counts of disturbing the peace and simple battery.

QUITE A MAN

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Stan Musial of the Cardinals has the highest lifetime batting average among currently active players in the National League — .337.

City Courts

MONROE

Among the cases appearing in Monroe city court yesterday were three separate charges of theft by check. Each warranted a compulsory jail sentence.

Judge W. M. Harper sentenced the following on the charge: Richard Curry, 1713 South 5th street, 60 days in jail; George Dyer, 617 Wood street, 30 days in jail; and P. A. Stucky, millers Hotel, 60 days in jail.

Also appearing on the court docket for yesterday were 13 cases of speeding, ten of public drunkeness, eight on reckless driving, seven on minor traffic accidents, and three each on disturbing the peace and vagrancy.

WEST MONROE

In West Monroe city court, Judge Jasper Jones sentenced one man on a theft charge, and two others forfeited bond on speeding charges.

Sentenced to a compulsory jail sentence of six months was Hardy Wiggins, 214 Bancroft street. He was charged with the theft of $130.

Farm Income Reported In 1959 Slump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reported Friday that farm income dropped 16 per cent to 11 billion dollars in 1959 while other segments of the economy improved.

The decline, which is expected to be a campaign issue in the presidential election, was one per cent greater than the department's economists predicted last November.

Net farm income—marketing receipts after farmers pay production expenses, taxes, interest and the like—was about the same in 1959 as 1957. But it was two billion dollars less than last year.

Americans can eat our at 330,000 restaurants, cafeterias, lunch counters, refreshment stands and taverns.

Attorney Makes Plea For Carole

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Carole Tregoff's only crime was that of a young girl falling in love with a man, a tearful defense attorney told the jury Friday in pleading for her acquittal of charges of murder.

Three lawyers for the 23-year-old mistress of Dr. R. Bernard Finch warned the jurors that if they find her guilty, they must also make the decision whether she is to die.

Carole was implicated in the slaying of Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch only on the word of a "pathological liar" and a "prosecution theory" that she helped Dr. Finch kill his wife, the defense said.

Rexford Eagan, who has the muscular build of a fullback but was blinking back tears at the end, rested the defense for Miss Tregoff with these words:

"If there is any blame that attaches to Carole Tregoff, it is an age-old story of a young girl in love with a man. That is her only crime—if you in your own good hearts can call that a crime.

"With that, ladies and gentlemen, we put in your hands the destiny of Carole Tregoff. May God grant that you take good care of it."

Eagan sought to explain why Carole stayed for five or six hours near the Finch home after the slaying.

He pointed to her left hand resting on the counsel table. "I had stayed there motionless in almost the same spot through most of the 2½ months of the trial.

"This girl is capable of freezing for five or six hours without her mental facilities," he said.

I have seen it here. I didn't tell her to put her hand there, but you will have noticed the hours she has sat in that way."

Not a single witness at the trial of Miss Tregoff and her surgeon-lover even placed Carole at the scene of the July 18 slaying and no one ever saw her there with him, yet she freely admitted to police the next day she had been at the home, her counsel said.

The trial was recessed until Monday morning when Finch's lawyer, Grant Cooper, will begin his summation.

Funeral Rites Set For Mrs. Kirby

Mother of Mrs. Wayne Walker, Monroe, Mrs. E. H. Kirby, 83, died Friday in a Jackson, Miss. Hospital.

Funeral services and burial will be in Charleston, Miss.

A small amount of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) fed to laying hens in the summer will result in fewer cracked and broken eggs.

Early Period Objects Are Being Shown

Mementos of that era during and following the Civil War, almost a century ago, are on display in the West Monroe High School vestibule.

The program is a part of the American history class observances of American History month, sponsored by the city's Chief Tusquahoma chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Within the display can be found a poster offering $100,000 reward for "the murderer, allegedly John Wilkes Booth, for the assassination o "our beloved president."

"We have tried to show the items and personal belongings of the period," said Margaret Rose Griffing, chairman of the student committee. "Included are firearms and bullet molds actually used in battle," she added.

POSTERS

Also included in the display are slave posters, reproductions of confederate flags, displays depicting the heros of the war, an English grammar book dated 1825, a Bible from 1856 and a McGuffey speller from 1879.

Students participating in the preparation of material in the display include, Miss Griffing, chairman, Barbara Neyland, Bobbie Faye Ervin, Joe Ashley, Martha Norris, Judy Wilhite, Melba Beasley, Betty Carter, Sidney Wilhite, and Kenneth Wilson.

Teachers directing the project were, Mrs. Malcom Lefevre and Mrs. W. W. Webb, history teachers at WMHS.

Contributing materials for the display were Charlotte Goodrum, Barbara Neyland, Millie Hislop, Harold Roth, Reggie Vaughn, George Coats, Murry Burford, Carolyn Spruell, Dealie Miller, S. R. Braley and John Turner.

GENERAL TAYLOR REPORTS NO. 12

It's Time To Reorganize The U.S. War Department

CHAPTER 12
By GENERAL
MAXWELL D. TAYLOR, RET.

The attic of the Department of Defense needs a thorough housecleaning to throw out many outmoded concepts, illusions, shibboleths, and fallacies. This should start with a rewriting of the roles and missions of the three services. The reorganization in 1958 made the primary function of the military departments one of organizing, equipping, and training forces having the distinguishing characteristics of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. For operations, these forces pass to the control of field commanders under the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

But the problem remains of redefining what we mean by Army, Navy, and Air Force. What makes the different one from the other? What justifies their independent existence?

I would define them as those services charged respectively with providing the forces necessary for sustained combat in a land, sea, and air environment. (I avoid here consideration of operations in space, in which all services have a potential interest.)

In the case of the Army, the land environment would be defined as including the land itself and the contiguous layers of air and sea necessary for ground operations. Fundamental would be the right of each service to possess all the weapons and equipment habitually needed in the execution of its functions. Thus, more than one service might properly possess the same weapons.

In November, 1956, I urged Secretary Wilson to adopt what I call the National Arsenal concept with regard to the new missiles. Under this concept, any service would be allowed to develop and produce any missile which the Department of Defense determined to be needed in the national defense and technically within its competence to produce. Once the missile was in existence, it would belong to a National Arsenal and be used by any service needing it for approved missions. I would now propose to make this National Arsenal concept applicable to all weapons and equipment.

A DISSATISFIED CUSTOMER

This proposed revision of roles and missions would affect primarily the Army and the Air Force. The Navy has been a satisfied service and a staunch defender of the status quo. Navy leaders have viewed with some amusement, I am sure, the unhappiness of the Army in its relations to the Air Force, and have tended to say "I told you so" to Army chiefs who struggled so hard for unification to the ultimate detriment of their role in sustained ground combat.

Since 1947, the Army has been dependent upon the Air Force for tactical air support, tactical air lift, and long range air transport. The Army has been a dissatisfied customer, feeling the Air Force has not fully discharged its obligations. The Air Force views on such issues as air-ground support procedures, air resupply, and control of air space over the battlefield. As technical improvements in weapons and equipment offered the Army the possibility of escaping from dependence, the Air Force succeeded in obtaining the support of the Secretary of Defense in imposing limitations on the size and weight of aircraft procured by the Army, on the ranges of Army missiles, and on the radius of Army activities in advance of the front line.

The two services have been constantly at loggerheads. They are at odds as to the adequacy of Air Force support for the Army, and as to the suitability of Air Force equipment to furnish this support.

I am convinced the Army must be freed from this tutelage. Restrictions of size, weight, and in the case of weapons, or range should be abolised and the Army encouraged to improve weapons and equipment habitually necessary for ground combat.

I would make mobility and the ability to live and operate with the Army in the field the distinguishing characteristic of all Army equipment.

Specifically, the Army would have mobile, surface-to-surface missiles of all necessary ranges (short of the intercontinental ballistic missiles) and all air defense missiles needed for the defense of its forces in the field and the land area in which they operate. The Air Force would have the ICBM's and the fixed air defense missiles for the defense of its own installations and bases. This amounts to giving the Air Force the entire mission of continental air defense, including offensive and defensive elements and the early-warning service.

TO WIPE OUT FEUDS

This integration would effect a tremendous simplification in development, operational control, and budgeting. It is hard to estimate how many interservice feuds would be eliminated. It should be emphasized that the changes proposed for the Army and the Air Force should be phased over a considerable period of time.

Having clarified the fundamental roles of the services, the Department of Defense should then clear out some of the cobwebs fogging the thought processes of our senior leadership.

A major effort of this book has been to expose the great fallacy that Massive Retaliation is an all-purpose strategy. Related is the fallacy that limited wars can be taken care of in the course of our general war preparations. It is also alleged that modern atomic weapons reduce the need for manpower. I know from experience that this is a fallacy insofar as it applies to the Army.

One other fallacy which should be mentioned is that a good offensive is the best defensive. This statement is usually used to justify additional funds for the Strategic Air Force at the expense of continental air defense. Yet it flies in the face of a fact which every sportsman knows, namely that a winning team in any game must have a balance of offensive and defensive strength.

There are some major changes to be made within the Department of Defense to facilitate the implementation of the new military program.

I would dissolve the JCS as it now exists and replace it by a single defense chief of staff for the one man functions and by a new advisory body called provisionally the Supreme Military Council. The new defense chief of staff would be assisted by two deputy chiefs of staff of the military services other than his own. He would wear four or five stars and be the senior military officer reporting directly to the secretary of defense and the President. He would have public responsibility corresponding to his great authority.

The Supreme Military Council, consisting of three four-star officers of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, would be advisory to the secretary of defense, the President, and Congress. They would be either retired officers or officers on their last tour of active duty and would not be carried on the rolls of any service.

SACRIFICES REQUIRED

This new status would tend to place the Council somewhere between the executive and legislative branches of government. The device offers promising possibilities of meeting a requirement not presently filled by the Joint Chiefs of Staff system.

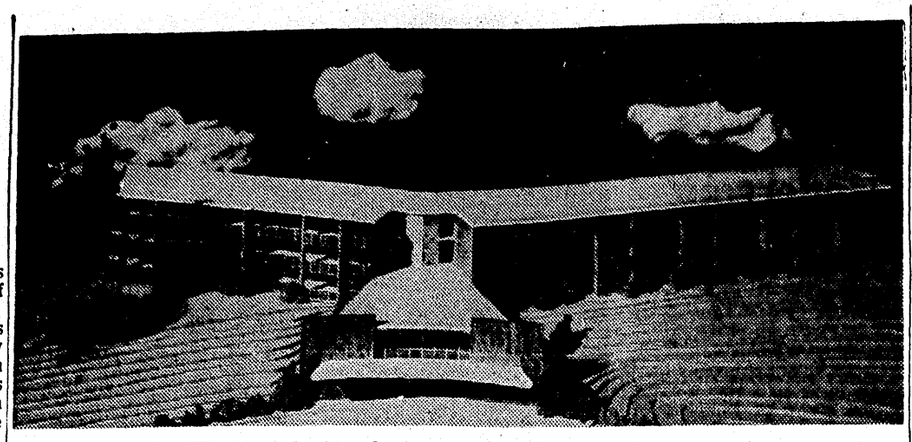
By sorting out the committee-type and the operational - type functions of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and by fixing clear responsibility, it would appear we would overcome most of the disadvantages in the present JCS system. These changes have the great merit of establishing a system with a reasonable chance of surviving if war comes. The present committee system would break down within the first few hours or days.

There is one other essential precondition to the implementation of the military program — a fundamental change in our national attitude. It must be made clear to our citizens that the nation will face a serious crisis beginning about 1961.

It will require sacrifice on the part of every one of us if we are to get over this dangerous period without intolerable risk. The simplest form of this sacrifice will be the payment of more taxes. I would suggest we are talking in terms of a budget of $50 to $55 billion a year for the next five years. Once the gap is closed, subsequent budgets need not be so high. This requirement for a bigger budget will exist regardless of any transitory shift in Soviet attitude and behavior.

We will also have to commit more of our ablest sons to the profession of arms. Army strength should be increased to a million men, its strength in 1955. The overall manpower required by all services will amount to at least 2.6 million.

All the foregoing actions should be taken to the sure notes of a certain trmupet, giving to friend and foe alike a clear expression of our purpose and our motives. Our readjustments should not be mistaken for a new spurt in an armament race. Actions to correct an imbalance of power and to replace the concept of Massive Retaliation by one of Flexible Response are measures conducive not to war but to world peace.



NEWEST ADDITION to the Northwestern State College campus at Natchitoches will be this $900,000 women's dormitory. Architect's plans for the impressive structure are nearing completion. Site for the new and modern dormitory will be on the knoll just west of St. Denis Hall. Tentative plans include air-conditioning for the dorm which is to house 300 students.

Firemen Do Double Duty On Southside

Firemen found themselves doing "double duty" yesterday as two separate fires sprang up within a short distance of each other in southside Monroe.

Storage material in a garage at the home of Nellie Walke, 509 South 4th street, flamed up about 4:10 p.m., and trucks No. 102 and 104 were dispatched to the scene to fight the blaze.

Meanwhile, a few blocks away, at 714 Ouachita Avenue, a house fire was reported, and firemen on truck 104 were called from the scene of the garage fire to battle the new house blaze. Truck 102 remained to squelch the smouldering remains at the garage, however, and did not leave the scene until 6:12 p.m. when all danger was past.

STRINGING HOSE

In the meantime, truck 104, along with truck 101, was stringing out its hose to battle the blaze that endangered the three-apartment house belonging to Mary Johnson, 1710 Louise Anne.

Although three occupants were using the house, only one apartment was seriously damaged—the one in which Viola Ford lived. The other two, belonging to Ivy Herrin and Nordell Young, received some smoke damage, but were not seriously damaged.

Cause of the blaze was not determined yesterday, but officials pointed to the badly-damaged kitchen as the probable source of the blaze.

The Fire Department also answered a third call yesterday to extinguish flames in a truck parked at a shopping center on Louisville Avenue. Truck 103 was dispatched to the scene and the blaze was reported out within a few minutes with not too much damage.

Motions Set For Hearing In Long Libel Suit

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Motions and counter motions in Gov. Earl K. Long six-million-dollar libel suit against Time Inc. will be heard in federal court March 14.

The U.S. District Court clerk's office today made public the hearing date.

The governor is asking that the slander suit be remanded to a state district court in nearby Livingston Parish.

After his mental hospital troubles last summer, he filed the lawsuit accusing Time Inc., publishers of Life and Time magazines, of slander.

Attorney for the defendant publishing firm seek to quash the suit in the motions to be heard by U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright. They insist Time Inc. is not answerable in Louisiana and for that reason the federal court should take jurisdiction.

Long's counsel has argued the state should handle the case because five distributors named in Long's original suit were Livingston Parish residents.

Joint Delegation From Twin Cities Sets Show Visit

A joint delegation from the Monroe and West Monroe Chambers of Commerce plans to go to the Delhi Stock Show Tuesday.

Paul Ransom Jr., chairman of the Monroe Agriculture Committee which is promoting the tour in cooperation with the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, said this is the third year the group will attend the show.

"They are participating as interested citizens in the Northeast Louisiana livestock economy," he pointed out.

Between 15 and 20 Chamber members will represent the Twin Cities, in an eight car motorcade.

They will meet for coffee at the Monroe Chamber at 9 a.m.

In Delhi, they expect to attend the hog, sheep and beef cattle judging and exhibitions, and leave about 2:30 p.m.

Five Persons Ordered To Stand Trial

Five persons were ordered to stand trial for major crimes yesterday in a heavy session of Fourth District Court.

Judge Jesse Heard set a May 2 trail date for Wilbur L. Jones, 29-year old Monroe man charged with the murder of his brother. Heard also appointed attorneys to defend Jones.

Fred Caldwell Calhoun, 41, was arraigned on a murder charge in the death of his estranged wife, Viola Windham Calhoun. Calhoun pleaded not guilty to the charge, and trial date was set for May 16.

ALSO ARRAINGED

Also arraigned was Ned Swafford Jr., 29, West Monroe Negro, charged with manslaughter in the death of his common-law wife, Maggie Willilams.

James Lee Wactor, 22, of New Orleans was ordered to stand trial on a charge of aggravated rape of a Monroe housewife. Judge Heard handed down the order after defense attorneys had called for a sanity hearing.

Wactor's trial date was set for May 18. He previously pleaded guilty to two counts of simple burglary.

William W. Earl, alias Bill Earl, pleaded not guilty to two charges of simple burglary. He was charged with participating in the burglaries of Hill Lumber and Supply Co. and Louisiana Parts Company, which netted several thousand dollars.

His trial was set for May 19.

Another man charged jointly with Earl, Mattox E. Harper Jr. of New Orleans, pleaded guilty to both charges. Heard ordered Harper remanded to the parish jail until a full investigation into his background could be made.

Former Solon Dead At 91

WASHINGTON (AP) — William J. Bulow, 91, who served as Democratic senator from South Dakota from 1931 until 1943, died Friday.

Bulow, blind since about 1957, has been in retirement since he was defeated for renomination in 1942 by former Gov. Tom Berry.

Before coming to Washington, Bulow served two years as governor of South Dakota. A man of few words, Bulow once said most speeches in Congress did about as much good as a hound dog baying at the moon. He felt most legislative work was done in the committee rooms.

A native of Clermont County, Ohio, Bulow became a lawyer in Beresford, S.D., after graduating from the University of Michigan.

His widow and his son, William Bulow, Jr., will accompany the body back to Beresford for burial Monday.

Americans spend an average $9.75 a year each for professional laundry service today, about nine times as much as 50 years ago.

Double Rites Set For Area Blaze Victims

Funeral services have been set for Mr. and Mrs. Dougald McCormick, who died when their home near Mangham was razed by fire early yesterday.

According to Richland Parish coroner Dr. J. C. Ellington, the couple died either of suffocation or burns when they were trapped in the blazing house. Mrs. McCormick was a semi-invalid, and Ellington stated that the husband probably died while attempting to save her.

Witnesses and firemen stated that they had no idea what caused the fire. When firemen arrived the house had already begun to collapse.

AGES

McCormick was 62 and his wife was in her late fifties.

Services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Mangham Baptist Church. The Revs. C. W. Jones, Paul Brooks and J. L. Striteman will officiate. Interment will follow in Gwin cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn's Funeral Home of Rayville.

Mr. McCormick's survivors include five sisters, Mrs. M. E. Overeen, Vicksburg, Miss.; Mrs. J. C. Maxwell, Olla; Mrs. Joe Davis, Masterson, Tex.; Mrs. E. L. Boyce, Monroe; Mrs. L. R. Brown, Alto; two brothers, Joe McCormick, Channing, Tex., and John McCormick, Natchez, Miss.

Mrs. McCormick is survived by three sisters, Mrs. L. O. Boughton, Mrs. Ben Brooks and Mrs. Ira Bruce, and one stepsister, Mrs. T. W. Stark, all of Mangham; four brothers, Homer and L. O. Boughton, both of Mangham; Oliver Boughton, Rayville, and J. G. Boughton, Orange, Tex.

COURT ACTION

20 Fines Levied On Drunk Driving

Twenty persons were fined in Fourth District Court yesterday after entering pleas of guilty to operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. One of the men, Jesse O. Anding, 52, 1134 Evergreen street, West Monroe, was charged as a second offender and fined $400 and costs and given a 125-day mandatory sentence in the parish jail.

The other 19 were fined $300 and costs or 90 days in the parish jail.

Thirty - three other persons entered not guilty pleas to the drunk driving charge; two trials were reset or continued; and bond for four forfeited when they failed to answer their call in court before Judge Jesse Heard.

FIRST OFFENDERS

Fined $300 as first offenders were: Leslie L. Anding, 46, Route 3, West Monroe; John C. Freeman, 30, 105 Oaklawn, West Monroe; C. H. Ruggs, 31, Route 4, Monroe; Joe R. Seymore; Edward F. Andrews, 3300 Polk street, Monroe; Theo L. Wright, 57, Monroe; Woodrow Mann, 33, 1103 Wallace street, Bastrop; Willie Linn, Jr., 33, Negro, West Monroe; Aubrey W. Wisner, 32, 600 Joseph Street, Monroe; E. R. Whitlock, 28, Calhoun; Pepper P. Tindal, 34, Monroe; Gladys S. Thomas, 30, Taylor avenue, Sterlington; Oran M. Tharp, 40, 1217 Montgomery street, Bastrop; O. T. Taylor, 49, Negro, Collinston; R. L. Smith, 31, Negro, Monroe; and Lenox P. East, 41, Shreveport.

Bonds were forfeited for four persons charged with operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. They were: Albert J. Welch, Jr., Negro, Minden; Robert F. Harris, 46, Newton Miss.; Van D. Knowles, 35, Monticello, Ark.; and Matthew James Riley, 30, Tulsa, Okla.

Pleading not guilty to the charge were 33 persons. Included in this group was Sam W. Hightower, 22, 1403 Milton street, Monroe, who through his attorney last year challenged the validity of the state statute governing the drunk driving. The motion to void the law was upheld by Judge David I. Garrett last July, but the Louisiana State Supreme Court overruled the lower court decision and specifically spelled out the law on operating motor vehicles while under the influence.

In voiding the state statute, Judge Garrett in effect held in abeyance all local fines on the charge in the parish. Before the Supreme Court had sent down its decision, more than 200 persons charged with operating motor vehicles while under the influence were pending in the district court.

Hightower's trial was set for May 27 by Judge Heard yesterday. Others set for trial included: Shelton Smith, 23, Route 1, Wisner; James A. Rabun, 41, Farmerville; William H. Ray, 51, Pineville; Henry S. Riser, 39, 910 South Seventh street, Monroe; Nathan C. Roberts, 49, 319 Washington street, West Monroe; Eldon H. Rogers, 28, Route 2, Farmerville; James Edward Scott 34 312 Pecan street, Monroe; William Scott, Negro 55, Ruston; James D. Simmons, 39, Shreveport; Joe R. Strickland, 51, 215 Peach street, Monroe; Marvin Dewitt Thompson, 32, General Delivery, Lena; Willie Vinson, Negro, 50, 906½ North Sixth street, West Monroe; Henry B. Walker, 41, Rayville; Billy Warrick, 21, Route 2, Ruston; Lillian L. Zirk, 36, Long Beach, Calif.

George Earl Kemp, 36, Jonesboro; William T. King, 46, 604 Filhiol street, Monroe; Robert J. Lewis, 48, 120 Kansas street, Monroe; Lesley Mayo, 407 Crosley street, West Monroe; Sid Miles, Negro, 42, 410 Benson street, West Monroe; Robert Moore, Jr., Negro, 25, 208 Cedar street, Monroe; Robert Neel, Negro, 30, General Delivery Sterlington; Thomas L. Parish, 44, Gladwater, Tex.; Paul C. Philley, 31, Route 1, Bastrop; Levi Powell, Negro 39, 105 Campbell street, West Monroe; James H. Redmond Jr., 21, 3708 Jackson street, Monroe.

Jessie C. Sepulveda, 35, 707 Coleman street, West Monroe; Gene L. Skipper, 39, Route 2, West Monroe; R. J. SAMUEL B. HUNT

Funeral services for Samuel B. Hunt, 77-year old resident of the Buckhorn Bend community who died unexpectedly Friday, are scheduled at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Peters Funeral Home Chapel.

Officiating will be the Rev. Dr. George W. Pomeroy. Interment, under the direction of Peters, will be in the Riverview Cemetery.

Mr. Hunt is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lucy Bass Hunt; three sisters, Mrs. Carrie Hardee, Mrs. J. W. Cunningham, and Mrs. Murl Womack, all of Shreveport, and a number of neices and nephews.

Pallbearers will be W. F. Ross, Earl Graham, Dempsy Crumpler, C. M. McMullen, Oscar McDonald and W. A. Lolley.

A resident of Monroe for 45 years, Mr. Hunt was a member of the First Methodist Church of Monroe and a native of Atlanta, La.

Post Office Dedication Set Sunday

JONESBORO, (Special) —Jonesboro's new Post Office will be formally dedicated with a special program at 2 p.m., Sunday.

The new building was constructed by Fincher Construction Company, of Dallas, Tex., with a bid of $287,727. This amount is a major portion of a $370,000 Congressional appropriation to cover all construction costs together with furniture, fixtures and grounds.

The magnificent new building here which houses the Jonesboro Post Office as well as various governmental agencies, was built under the General Service Administration program, and is the first such building to be constructed under the program in the Louisiana area.

The building contract was let about the first of June, 1958, following the opening of bids on April 17. Construction was begun on July 9 of that year and the building was ready for occupancy on January 13, of this year. The ceremonies scheduled for Sunday have been arranged by Postmaster J. Bland Fain, in cooperation with the Jackson Parish Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A number of prominent postal officials will be on hand for the occasion and the principal address of the afternoon will be delivered by the Honorable Otto E. Passman, Congressman for the Fifth Congressional District.

Open House and Tour of Building until 4 p.m.

Grains Tilt Toward Weak Slant Friday

CHICAGO (AP) — Old crop months of all grains tilted toward weakness Friday. Trade volume was small and all price changes within a cent.

March and May rye led the setbacks and ended the day further in low ground for the season on losses of about a cent. It was the second time in two days that these two months had broken through their previous lows.

Wheat closed ½ cent a bushel lower to ⅛ higher, March $1.97¼; corn ¾ lower to ¼ higher, March $1.12-11⅞; oats unchanged to ½ lower, March 73½; rye ⅞ lower to ¾ higher, March $1.21¾; soybeans ½ lower to ¼ higher, March $2.09¼-⅜.

BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

By United Press International

EARNINGS SOAR

Radio Corp of America reported that earnings last year soared 30 per cent over 1958 while over-all sales climbed 19 per cent as defense orders increased by 54 per cent.

The net came to $2.65 a share compared with $2.01 in the previous year. Chairman David Sarnoff and President John L. Burns told stockholders in the annual report that the firm expects to double its present $1,395,620,000 sales volume within five years.

PREDICTS STRUGGLES

A leading industry source predicted Friday that the next decade will show continued struggles among sugar growers to balance production with consumption and probably lead to lower prices for the commodity. Evan Fisher, of B.W. Dyer & Co., sugar economists: said that if present trends continue, overproduction will exceed 5 million by 1970.

URGES INDUSTRY POLICING

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) warned Friday that if the drug industry doesn't start some "rigorous" policing of its own advertising. "Congress or an agency of the government will do it for them." The chairman of the Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly Committee said it was an "intolerable" situation when a drug company's own doctors lost the argument with its advertising people over whether an ad was misleading.

DENIES REQUEST

The House Appropriations Committee denied the President's request for $675 million to replenish the farm price support fund administered by the Commodity Credit Corp., saying it had no real need for the money. The CCC sought the extra $675 million to cover the cost of past losses on crop surpluses and to replenish its capital.

Butcher Hog Market Hits Highest Price

CHICAGO (AP) — The butcher hog market Friday hits its highest price in six months.

Snow-covered highways curtailed offerings to only 3,500 head and buyers bid prices up to $15.25 a hundredweight although sparingly. It was the peak since that price was paid last Aug. 26 and went for one lot of mixed No. 1-2 grades scaling 219 lbs. Other mixed grades brought $14.75-15.15.

Several loads of choice and prime grade slaughter steers weighing 1,275-1,350 lbs brought $26.50-28.50 in a quotably steady cattle market. Other grades of steers, heifers and vealers were meager or absent and no sales were reported. Utility grade bulls sold up to $21.50.

Good and choice wooled slaughter lambs moved at $21.00-22.00 with prices steady all around. Ewes were $6.50-8.50.

Cotton — Irregular; trading quiet.
Chicago:
Wheat—Mixed; old crop months weak.
Corn — Mixed; old crop months easier.
Oats — Mostly lower; light liquidation.
Soybeans — Mixed; old crop months lower.
Hogs — 50 cents higher; top $15.25.
Cattle—Slaughter steers steady; top $28.50.

COTTON

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 15 cents a bale lower to 15 cents higher Friday.

Liquidation in other current crop months stemmed from private reports from the South that merchants were offering cotton more freely and in some cases as much as one cent a pound below asking prices of a month ago. Expectations that more farmers will elect to overplant basic acreage allotments this year caused some easing in new crop months.

Stock Mart Ends Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed higher today but below its best for the session. Trading was active.

Volume for the day was estimated at 3,700,000 shares compared with 3,600,000 Thursday.

Gains of most key stocks went from fractions to a point or so. A few blue chips did better, union carbide and Eastman Kodak rising about 2 and U.S. Gypsum more than 3.

Speculative interest was focused on electronics and other widely moving issues. General Time gained half a dozen points. Haveg and Motorola about 5 apiece and Zenith around 3.

Gains of about 2 were posted for Siegler, Magnavox and Litton Industries.

American Motors rebounded more than 3 points in a narrowly mixed auto section. U.S. Steel and Republic Steel advanced more than a point each.

The firing of the Midas satellite found Lockheed up about a point and General Dynamics fractionally higher. Both firms helped in the project.

U.S. government bonds drifted lower.

Special Science Teacher Plans Mangham Fare

Mrs. Jessie Jean Gill, one of 20 specially trained science teachers participating in an eight-state traveling science demonstration-lecture program during the 1959-60 school year, will spend one week in the Mangham High School beginning March 14.

The program is supported by a $335,000 National Science Foundation grant to Oklahoma State university, Stillwater, where Mrs. Gill spent three months during the past summer in preparation for the job.

While at OSU she was issued a station wagon completely equipped with lecture-demonstration apparatus and supplies. She and the other 19 traveling science teachers were selected by a committee of scientists because of their outstanding qualifications.

Mrs. Gill, 39, was born at East Carroll Parish, La., and attended schools at Monticello, where she graduated from high school in 1935.

She holds a BS degree from Louisiana Polytechnic institute and a master of education degree from Louisiana State university.

She is a member of the National Education association, Louisiana Teachers association, East Carroll Parish Teachers association, Parent-Teachers association, American Legion auxiliary and Baptist church.

She is on leave from Lake Providence high school, where she has taught mathematics since 1939.
